But the Question Agitating Democrats Is: Can He Produce Proof of Campaign to Depreciate Bonds?

SENATOR OWEN RAPS NATIONAL CITY BANK

Alleges Publicity Campaign Against Currency Reform, and Ridicules Objections to Government Controlling

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The currency situation today is surcharged with acrimonious discussion, private and public. Secretary McAdoo continues to be the target of bankers, Republicans, insurgents and bewildered Democrats. The suspicion that he acted without direct documentary proof in charging a conspiracy in New York to depress government bonds will not down. Now the question is: How he is going to get away with it, without confounding the issue of currency legislation?

McAdoo is silent. He refused himself to the newspaper men who called at his office today, and it was said for him that he would have nothing further to publish until he had had opportunity to examine the pile of correspondence which his statement of Monday night has inspired.

REPUBLICANS EMBOLDENED.

The failure of Mr. McAdoo to name names has emboldened the Republicans in their fight against currency legislation. They declare now that they will persist in their plan to prolong the tariff debate in order to stave off the Wilson brand of currency reform. They believe that they put the president in a hole when they caled on him for proof of the tariff lobby allegations.

Against the suspicion that Mr. McAdoo acted on information and belief, rather than on information and specific knowledge, is the assertion of friendly critics that he knows the devious ways of New York well enough to know what it is striking at. They insist that he has sufficient acumen to appreciate the seriousness of his charges.

WAS PRESIDENT WARNED?

One question that has gone unanswered is this: Did the president have any advance information about McAdoo's intention to issue such a statement? None of the administration authorities have said a word by way of enforcing Mr. McAdoo's allegation, and because of this there has been drawn an inference that Mr. McAdoo acted solely upon his own responsibility.

Senator Owen elaborated today upon his statement that the banks would be the first to try to manipulate the federal reserve board, if given control over it. The senator was asked by The Journal if he could cite any recent case where the big New York city banks, or their allies, would seem to have misused their discretionary powers for political or selfish purposes.

SENATOR OWEN TALKS.

"Cite specific instances?" the senator repeated.

"No. I am not going to be diverted from my present purpose and work, nor do I propose to be drawn into further controversy with these banks or other banks. But I know the National City bank record and a lot of others in the same crew. I know of how they travel about the country, quietly at work with their publications, to create sentiment inimical to the banking and currency bill. Oh, you bet I know them, and I know them well. But I haven't the time to quarrel with them, for I've got a pretty big think on my hands just now.

RAPS THE BANKS.

"You've heard what I said in my statement the other day. If the banks themselves were permitted to control the federal reserve board, the National City bank would head the list in its political activities to control the federal reserve board and would not be moved altogether by altruistic purposes. That's clear enough, isn't it?

"And you've heard what the banks—particularly those political banks—have to say? Intimating that the federal reserve board could be left in the hands of 'dead ducks, politicians, old timber out for a job.' What right have they to offer any such thing? On what do they base such an assumption Why, the men who will compose that board will have control of over twenty-five millions of dollars and these banks dare to say 'politicians,' meaning wornout men, we are left to infer, will be chosen for such positions. That's sheer impudence—nothing less than damned impudence.

"No," he concluded, "I don't want to cite specific instances. It's not necessary."

VENEZUELAN TOWN TAKEN BY CASTRO; GOVERNOR SEIZED

CASTRO SAID TO HAVE LANDED ONLY TUESDAY

Political Situation Critical—Colombian Government Announces That It Will Hold Aloof From Broil

(By Associated Press.)

WILLIMSTED, July 30.—Coro, a town in Falcon, Venezuela, has been occupied by partisans of Cipriano Castro and General Leon Jurado, governor of Falcon, has ben taken prisoner, according to rumors reaching here.

It was said that Castro landed in Venezuela yesterday.

The political situation in Venezuela is regarded as critical. Scores of important persons have been imprisoned.

The last definite news as to the whereabouts of Cipriano Castro, former in Berlin from New York. After he left dictator of Venezuela, was his arrival the German capital he was reported to have reached the Canary islands, whence he disappeared. He later was reported at various times to have been in Key West, in Curacao, and at Panama. Later he was said to have departed for Colombia, whither his brother, Carmelo, had preceded him.

The political situation in Venezuela has occupied attention for some time, owing to the flight from that country of prominent politicians, some of whom arrived in Curacao and at other points in the West Indies, where they took refuge from threatened imprisonment by President Gomez.

Rumors have been current that many shipments of arms have been sent to Venezuela for distribution among Castro's partisans and it was believed by Venezuelans in New York that an uprising against Gomez was in preparation.

Columbian Government Is Remaining Neutral

(By Associated Press.)

BOGOTA, July 30.—Active revolutionary movements in Venezuela and the invasion of that country simultaneously at various points on the Colombian frontier by adherents of former President Cipriano Castro, are reported by the newspapers here.

The Colombian government is observing complete neutrality.

All Newt Wants Now Is Freedom and a Hat

Now that Newt Lee has more 'bacca, as he says, "than Mr. Rosser axed him questions," he needs but a hat to complete his physical comfort, but freedam to set his mind at rest.

Newt's only hat is a fur cap, which Newt thinks might have made a "ver' putty Christmas gift when 'twas new, but don't do much fer July."

"You see, boss," he explains, "a straw hat jes' naturally looks cool, makes yer feel like you had money in your pocket. But there ain't no use fer a cap and it furry in July.

"Man promised to bring me a hat, but I guess his memory's bad. Leastways I ain't seen anything of the hat. But I certainly is proud of de 'bacca."

Since Newt told Tuesday how one chew brought him solace after his cross-examination by Mr. Rosser; and how, when he was on the witness stand his thoughts were of 'bacca, he has been given all sorts and kinds.

He says when he gets out he may take a day off to catch up on "chewing," and that he would like a nice hat to wear then.

GRACE HIX TESTIFIES THAT GIRLS FREQUENTLY COMBED THEIR HAIR OVER MACHINES

Miss Hix Also Testifies That Magnolia Kennedy, Who Worked Near Mary Phagan, Had Hair of the Same Color and Shade—Important Admissions Lay Foundation for Defense's Claim That Murder Was Not Committed in Metal Room

STATE ENDEAVORS TO SHOW FRANK VERY NERVOUS AND DID NOT LOOK ON FACE OF MURDERED GIRL

Attorney Rosser Directs His Questions to Combat Claim of Nervousness—Witness Declares She Never Saw Any Red Paint in the Metal Room—State Claims New Evidence Will Soon Be Given—Trial Will Run Into Second Week

Four distinct features marked the trial of Leo M. Frank Wednesday. One was an admission from Miss Grace Hix that the girls frequently combed their hair over the machines in the metal room of the factory; another was a strenuous effort on the part of the state to prove that Frank was very nervous on the morning of the discovery of little Mary Phagan's body; still another feature was the attempt of the state to show that Frank was reluctant to look upon the dead girl's face in the undertaking parlors, and the fourth was the state's efforts to prove that red paint never had been seen on the floor of the metal room where the state alleges bloody spots were found.

Around each of these points stiff legal tilts occurred. In developing from Miss Hix's testimony the fact that the girls combed their hair in the metal room, Attorney Rosser laid the foundation for a refutation of the theory that Mary Phagan was murdered there.

The state is expected to introduce as evidence several strands of hair found on the handle of a turning lathe in the metal room, presumed to be those of Mary Phagan. Attorney Rosser drew from the Hix girl the admission that Miss Magnolia Kennedy, one of the metal room employees who worked very close to Mary Phagan's machine, had hair almost the same shade as that of the murdered girl.

Evidently as to the nervousness of Frank on the morning of the murder was given by City Detective John Black and W. W. Rogers, who, after the body had been found, called at Frank's home in an automobile to bring him to the pencil factory. Upon cross-examination by Attorney Rosser these witnesses were unable to furnish any specific instances of Frank's conduct indicating nervousness, beyond the fact that he walked rapidly, talked fast, found some difficulty in adjusting his collar and tie, and several times reeferred to his desire for a cup of coffee or something to eat.

Both of these witnesses swore that when they took Frank to the undertaking establishment they did not see him look at the dead girl's face. However, neither of them would swear positively that Frank did not do so.

Apparently Solicitor Dorsey regarded as important the testimony of Grace Hix that the factory paints were kept in the polishing room, which a some distance from the metal room. The girl declared that she had seen a few drops of paint on the floor of the metal room leading from the polishing room to the water cooler, but that she had never observed any red paint on the floor. Attorney Rosser compelled the witness to admit that the floors of the factory were very dirty and badly stained and that on account of the dust and dirt only two or three days would be necessary to elapse to make it impossible to determine the color of a stain of pant which had been dropped upon the floor.

Attorneys in the case are fighting strenuously over every point however insignificant it may seem to the spectators.

Despite the battle of three days, however, no testimony not already in the hands of the public has been presented. The prosecution, nevertheless, promises to produce new and startling evidence before much more progress in the case is made.

The report that J. M. Gantt, who was arrested shortly after the murder and later released, would give sensational evidence to the effect that he saw Frank and Conley together about 1:25 on the day of the tragedy was denied by Gantt. Gantt declared he met a friend of his, Rossier Shields, about 1:50 in the afternoon and went to the restaurant opposite the pencil factory, but that he did not see anyone come in or go out of the factory, as he was not noticing.

An effort of the prosecution to develop through the testimony of "Boots" Rogers that Leo M. Frank did not look upon the face of Mary Phagan as she lay in the morgue on the Sunday morning when Frank, accompanied by officers, visited the undertaker's, and an equally determined effort of the defense to show that Rogers did not know whether Frank saw the little girl's face or not, was one of the interesting features of the Wednesday morning session. Solicitor Dorsey, presumably, was endeavoring to show that Frank had lost his nerve and that he could not bear the sight of the child's face, and Attorney Rosser combatted his efforts very energetically. The witness was stopped several times by each side as he was dismissed by the other and made to go over his testimony.

Another interesting feature was the line of questions directed at Miss Grace Hix, the friend of Mary Phagan, who was first to identify her body. Solicitor Dorsey asked her in considerable detail about a door on the second floor, leading to the third story. This door was near the point where the defense claims the girl was killed. It has never figured in the case however, until shown on the solicitor's diagram. The purpose of the solicitor is not yet apparent. Mr. Dorsey also had Miss Dix tell what the natural route would have been from Frank's office to the metal room. The lines on the solicitor's diagram indicate a route which Mr. Frank is supposed to have taken and which apparently was somewhat out of the way.

Before Rogers took the stand the diagram of the pencil factory was again submitted by Solicitor Dorsey, but with all writing removed. After an argument by the attorneys with the jury out, the room Judge Roan admitted the diagram as representing the state's theory.

While lawyers and principals in the Frank trial refuse to estimate the probable length of the big legal battle, those who have been following the case closely now believe that it will run far into next week. Judging from the progress made since the jury was chosen the state will die well if it closes its case by next Saturday.

Everybody is wondering whether or not Conley, if he is called, will stand up under the battery of the defense when he takes the stand against the accused factory superintendent. Conley is expected to be the state's main witness.

Conley is almost certain to take the stand twice during the trial. He will, of course, be a witness in the direct presentation of evidence by the state. And it is more than probable that he will be called in rebuttal to refute the statement that W. H. Mincey, defense witness, is expected to make. Mincey claims that Conley, while intoxicated, confessed to murdering a girl on the day Mary Phagan was killed.

So far the prosecution has presented nothing that has not been told the public weeks ago through the newspapers. Attorney Frank A. Hooper, for the prosecution, promises that evidence heretofore unknown will be brought before the jury this week, however. In conversation with newspapermen Thursday morning he said that the state would present important new evidence before it closes its case.

PUBLIC ADMITTED.

At 8:40 o'clock the public was admitted to the court room until the seats were taken. About fifty people were left outside when the doors were shut again. Frank already had arrived from the jail, in charge of the sheriff. Judge L. S. Roan was in his own chambers.

The jury was waiting in the room designated for its use. No women appeared among the crowd first admitted to the court. Frank, the accused man, sprucked cheerful, and chatted unconcernedly with friends close to him.

Court reconvened at 9 o'clock. The judge, lawyers and other principals appeared in mohair or linen suits.

$225,000 IN JEWELS TAKEN BY THIEVES AT NARRAGANSETT

Mrs. John H. Hanan Loses $150,000 Worth of Gems and Mrs. C. C. Rumsey's Loss Is $75,000

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., July 30.—America's best detective genius is matching wits today with expert crooks who took $225,000 worth of gems almost from under the noses of the owners in the summer colony here during the last week-end.

Rival agencies, with international reputations as thief-getters, have been engaged by the victims, Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, and Mrs. John H. Hanan, wife of a wealthy shoe manufacturer. Every pier on Narragansett bay is being watched in the belief that the thieves, operating as gentlemen, are sauntering about the fashionable hotels, looking for an opportunity to leave town without exciting suspicion. Thus far not a tangible clew has been found.

HANAN LOSS $150,000.

Mrs. Hanan's jewels, worth $150,000, were stolen from her room at Shore Acres Friday evening during the absence of a maid for not more than twenty minutes. The gems lost by Mrs. Rumsey, valued at $75,000, were removed from her sleeping room while she was out on Saturday evening.

It is believed that the old gang which profited so greatly here in the summer of 1911 is again at work and the police realize that if this is the case they are placed against expert cunning. Attention again is turned toward the reported "fence" in Boston long believed to be patronized by these thieves, but which has never been located. However, it is not expected that the members of the gang will attempt to dispose of their booty for some time to come.

SERVANTS NOT SUSPECTED.

Mrs. Hanan said that the twenty-five servants had been eliminated in the investigation.

"I left the house on Friday evening

Harry Holland, Star Collegian, Turns Down Big League Offers To Help Out His Home Club

Refused to Go to Philadelphia or Washington but Signed With Atlanta Last Night, Play in Series With Nashville Here Thursday

After repeatedly refusing handsome offers from major league ball clubs to enter professional baseball Harry Holland, the former Tech college star, has come to the rescue of the Atlanta club, signing a contract with the Crackers for the remainder of the 1913 season.

Holland will make his debut as a member of the Atlanta club in Thursday's double-header with Nashville. It is the first game of the Crackers' next home stay. He probably will play second base in place of Whitey Alperman, who is sick in Mobile.

For two years Harry Holland has withstood flattering offers from Connie Mack, Clark Griffith and a dozen or more minor league managers, but when he saw his own team down in the rut owing to the illness of Captain Whitey Alperman and an injury to Bill Bailey he relented and signed out of patriotism. Owing to parental objections he had remained out of the professional end of the game, but when the home club began to go bad his parents withdrew their objections and he is entering the game with the best wishes of all.

HAS ENVIABLE RECORD.

Never in the history of southern college ball has such a phenomenal ball player been developed as Harry Holland. He was with the Tech team for four seasons and in that time made a record that attracted the attention of every major and minor league scout in the country. Even before he finished his schooling the big show people were after him and when he completed school they came in increased numbers. But the young star held off and but for the illness of Captain Alperman he would right now be working at the electrical business instead of preparing to play second base for the Atlanta club.

Never has there been any doubt in

TAX EQUALIZATION BILL IS NOT LIKELY TO PASS

Vigorous Fight of Minority Indicates Death of All Tax Measures

The house indicated Wednesday that tax equalization bills in no form will be passed at this session of the general assembly. The fight on section 16 of the Lipscomb bill which explains the power of the state board, proved more concentrated than expected, through the leadership of Representative J. E. Sheppard, of the minority, and it is practically certain that the necessary two-thirds vote of the house for the measure will not be forthcoming.

Almost equally certain is it that the substitute of Mr. Sheppard will be defeated, thereby blocking effectually for a time at least any legislation looking toward tax reform.

It was evident at the outset of the session, that both the majority and minority forces were determined to fight to the last ditch, and even sacrifice the enactment of any law along the proposed lines in order to defeat one another.

The debate began shortly before 10 o'clock and continued until the set hour of adjournment when by vote of 73 to 56 it was decided to have an extra session in the afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock in order to dispense with the business before the house.

Contesting every inch of ground, both sides battled for over three hours with the odds slightly in favor of the minority and against the creation of a state board of tax equalizers.

Mr. Sheppard was assisted by Representatives Wimberly, of Bibb; Stovall, of Elbert and Stewart, of Coffee. Representatives Swift, of Muscogee, was the majority floor leader, with Messrs. Myrick, of Chatham; Wheatley, of Sumter, and Akin, of Glynn, standing behind him.

CLEM POOLE INDICTED ON CHARGE OF MURDER

DALTON, Ga., July 30.—Clem Poole, charged with the murder of Policeman Harry Cook, Tuesday afternoon was indicted for murder by the grand jury, the bill being returned shortly after 5 o'clock. Three other indictments for murder, against Dan Hatfield, John and Tom Nicodemus, were returned at the same time, and the cases have been set for trial Wednesday. Hatfield and the Nicodemus brothers are charged with the murder of Will Parrish, in North Dalton, several weeks ago.

Poole, captured in Chattanooga, was brought back Tuesday afternoon at 4.25 o'clock, Police Chief White, Policemen Duckworth and J. P. Elrod going after the prisoner. Several hundred people had gathered, awaiting the arrival of the officers with their prisoner, but Poole was not touched. He was taken to the county jail and confined. Judge O. G. Glenn, his attorney, remaining with him for some time.

The murder cases will be called in the superior court today. The case against Hatfield will be taken up first, and it probably will be Thursday before the Poole case is reached.

Acting under instructions from his attorney, Poole refused to make any kind of a statement. He would not talk of the crime with which he is charged. When questioned, Judge Glenn stated that he was employed Tuesday morning to defend Poole and had been busy throughout the day preparing the defense. "I see no reason now why we should not be ready at least by Thursday," he said, "and I expect an acquittal for my client."

Hatfield, charged with murder, announced when taken before Judge Pite that he was unable to employ counsel, and Judge Pite appointed Attorney W. E. Mann to defend him. Mann has been retained to defend the Nicodemus brothers, charged with being implicated in the murder of Will Parrish.

STRANGE BURNING PLANT BLOOMS AT EATONTON

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., July 30.—Rather a rare botanical specimen sent by a former resident of this county to relatives here during its full bloom of the past two weeks has attracted considerable attention, not only from lovers of rare plants, but lovers of the curious as well. The plant is known, or called by both of two names, the Bird of Paradise plant, and Moses and the Burning Brush, either of which seems fully appropriate. The bush is about eight feet tall of leguminous type, and the blooms are in clusters, yellow in color with several seemingly elongated pistils extending from within the calyx, red and pink making a very happy harmony of colors. The large clusters over the bush with these red pistils attract attention immediately to the plant and give it indeed the appearance of a burning bush. At the same time, the blooms taken separately make the Bird of Paradise plant seem especially appropriate as a name. Pods containing seed make the plant easy of propagation and quite a number of citizens have been eagerly securing these as souvenirs.

SUIT FOR LANDS OF SOUTHERN PACIFIC

(By Associated Press.)

PORTLAND, Ore., July 30.—The filing by the government of another suit to forfeit lands held by the Southern Pacific railroad was announced here today. Approximately 100,000 acres are at stake and the names of Collis P. Huntington, Leland Stanford and Charles F. Crocker, who built the Central Pacific railroad, are brought in.

The petition, filed by eleven settlers, charges that the original filers on the land merely were dummies for the company and hence the provisions of the congressional land grant of 1869 were violated. Other frauds are charged and the petition asks that the lands revert to the state and be resold to settlers at $2.50 per acre. An injunction against timber cutting on the lands also is asked.

Store Burglarized

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TIFTON, Ga., July 30.—Studstill's general merchandise store at Sparks was entered by burglars Monday night or Tuesday morning, and eight watches, a suit of clothing and a lot of underwear appropriated by the thieves. One of the watches was valued at $30, the others are not so valuable but the total will amount to a good sum. The Tifton officers have been notified to look out for the thief or thieves.

DEEP CRACKS ON JOINTS

Of Toes and Fingers. Hands So Bad Had to Sleep With Gloves On. Suffered Agony. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Completely Cured.

P. O. Box 378, El Paso, Texas. — "My trouble began December, 1911. It commenced on me by causing a scurf-like skin and my toe joints, finger joints and lips commenced to crack and split open. My finger cracks would bleed all day long; the cracks were very deep and my thumbs seemed to be cracked to the bone. My hands were so bad that I had to sleep with gloves on. The cracks in my lips would bleed often during the day and I used to put adhesive plaster across them to try to keep them closed. My toes would bleed, and I would find blood in my socks when the day's work was done. The skin around the cracks was red and inflamed. I wore shoes one size too large on account of my feet being so sore. I used to become frantic with pain at times. My hands and feet used to smart.

"I suffered agony for four months. I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and as a last resort I answered and got samples immediately. After trying them one night the next morning I found relief. I went to town and got some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. From the time I commenced with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment until completely cured was just nineteen days." (Signed) Jack Harrison, Nov. 19, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold throughout the world. A single set is often sufficient. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Youthful Ty Cobb In A Dream Game Falls Two Stories

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., July 30—Dreaming that he had to make a hard run to capture a fly driven between left and center field, Claud Prentiss, twelve years of age and a son of O. G. Prentiss, agent for the Southern road here, dashed through a second-story window last night, and struck the brick pavement below.

The little fellow is an unusually good outfielder, and loves the national pastime, and his dream was in line with his waking thoughts.

PURER TEA IS COMING TO UNITED STATES NOW

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Purer tea is reaching the United States, a result of the treasury department's enforcing the law against the importation of colored teas. Secretary McAdoo today announced that a little more than 1 per cent of the importations for the fiscal year 1913, ended June 30, was refused admission to this country. This is a decrease as compared with the previous year.

George Mitchell, supervising tea examiner of the government, reported that 1.53 per cent of the year's importations were rejected by the tea examiners, .54 per cent being for artificial color and .99 per cent on account of inferior quality. About 31 per cent of these rejections finally were admitted by the United States board of tea appeals. During the year 95,539,667 pounds were imported, of which 1,461,787 pounds were rejected.

Foreign tea men and their respective governments, in trying to meet the standard of purity established by the treasury department have made great progress during the last year in the elimination of artificial coloring matter from their teas, announced the secretary.

GEORGIA ROAD ABANDONS OLD PAYING OFF SYSTEM?

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GREENSBORO, Ga., July 30.—The employes of the Georgia railroad at this station were paid off this week by checks being sent out from the general offices in Augusta.

It is thought by this action that the time honored custom of paying off in person from a special train has been abandoned by the railroad. The Georgia railroad is among the last railroads in this section of the country to adopt this new system.

CLAIMS HE IS THE HEIR TO BALTIMORE PROPERTY

F. G. Alexander, of Birmingham, to File Suit for Price Estate

(By Associated Press.)

BALTIMORE, July 30.—F. G. Alexander, who claims to be a stockbroker of Birmingham, Ala., is in Baltimore to prosecute his claim as one of the "heirs" of the Price estate, said to consist largely of a big tract of land in the heart of Baltimore's business district. According to his statement the Price heirs are entitled to nearly all of the upper end of the eastern shore of Maryland, as well as to a large portion of Baltimore city and county. He said he had been told they could count on about $10,000,000 as the value of their claim.

"I am the owner of the original sheepskin parchment on which these grants of land were made to Andrew and Thomas Price by Lord Baltimore," Mr. Alexander added. "Andrew was given the eastern shore grant and Thomas that on this side of the bay. This land was leased for ninety-nine years and the lease automatically renewed itself. Hence the buildings have gone on from time to time without molestation. I have traced nineteen parcels of the Baltimore property and think we can prove title. The remaining parcels cannot be followed so easily, as the records have been lost or confused in the lapse of time."

The title deeds to much of the land in question have been guaranteed by title companies and most of the numerous claimants gave up hope of acquisition of any portion of it when the old irredeemable ground rent system was explained to them.

STRIKERS AND EMPLOYERS INVITED TO CONFERENCE

Michigan Governor Undertakes to Mediate Copper Mine Trouble

(By Associated Press.)

CALUMET, Mich., July 30.—A crucial development in the copper strike situation was scheduled for today, the operators having been asked to consider proposals emanating from Lansing that a conference of employers and employes take place in the governor's office.

The attitude of the company, it was predicted, would not be friendly to the plan, inasmuch as the operators said 't would place them in the position of recognizing the Western Federation to at least some degree.

The militia today began an investigation in connection with the wounding of a striker by a sentry at Isle Royale mine last night.

They sought to determine the truth of the sentry's statement that he had been assaulted with stones before he fired.

Five of the jury were stenographers, one was married and four were under the legal age. The trial lasted three hours and it took the jury less than ten minutes to agree upon a verdict.

Mill Man Promoted

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., July 30.—Superintendent Clinton M. Powell, who came here a year ago from Monticello, Ark., to take charge of the Putnam Mills and Power company, leaves this week to assume the superintendency of a large mill being erected at Kanapolis, N. C., one of a large number of mills owned by the Cannon Brothers syndicate, of Concord, N. C., who operate more than a dozen mills in Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina, the Imperial mills, of this city among the number. The mill being erected at Kanapolis, is more than twice as large as the two mills here, and Mr. Powell's choice as superintendent was quite a flattering compliment as well as promotion. He is a gentleman of fine family and a citizen whom all of Eatonton regret to lose.

Retired Georgia Planter's Advice to Kidney Sufferers

Regarding the wonderful curative merits of your Swamp-Root, I cannot say too much. After suffering severely for three years or more with severe pains caused by weak kidneys, I was finally induced to try Swamp-Root through a testimonial I read in one of the newspapers. I was in such a condition that I was obliged to arise from my bed six or eight times every night. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and before it was used I felt so much relief that I purchased a one-dollar bottle and by the time this was taken the old pains had left my back and I could sleep the whole night through. I am a retired planter, 70 years of age, and owing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, I am in the best of health and feel like a boy. I am always glad to recommend Swamp-Root to those who are in need of it.

Sincerely yours,
C. E. USSERY.

Booklovers' Bulletin

As a few of The Journal contestants are under the impression that we gave the correct title to picture No. 1 in that story and later in answer to queries stated that the answer was not given, we reproduce the story as published so that all of our readers can see for themselves that the title "Their Yesterday" does not appear in this story.

DAILY CAMPAIGN STORY
The Lady With the Catalogue Talks Titles

Of the several hundred Booklovers who called at The Journal office yesterday for a catalogue there was one dear old lady with gray hair and a good face, who attracted the campaign Editors attention by her enthusiasm in regard to the plan.

"You know," she said, "I was in your last Booklovers' Campaign, and while I did not get one of the Grand Prizes, I did get a prize and learned, too, that if I took your advice all the way through, I would surely get a better prize. Let me explain to you how I so after the correct titles in your catalogue, and if I am not right in my plan, I know you will set me right. Here is yesterday's picture, No. No. 1, of the series, and you see it is a devoted old couple, evidently discussing other days, and from the words, evidently good days. I would take this catalogue and go through it alphabetically to get at the right title to that picture. In the 'G' column I find 'Good Old Times,' in the 'H' column 'Happy Days and Happy Hours,' 'I' column, 'In Perfect Peace,' in the 'L' column, 'Left to Themselves,' as I notice they are all alone, the same as myself and my dear old husband. In the 'M' column, 'The Measure of Our Youth,' and the 'O' column, 'Our Old Home'; 'P' column, 'Peace and Happiness,' 'W' column, 'We Two.' There may be others that apply to that particular picture and when I get home I will go through it carefully and if there are any I will write you and let you know. Now, Mr. Editor, have I the right idea, or have you any better plan?"

No, we have no better plan at present and commend the dear old lady's plan to all our old and young booklovers. It means to you a little more work, but it is work that will count big for you in the wind up of this delightful campaign. So let us all take off our hats to the dear old Georgia lady who is going to win and is willing to help all other contestants to win.

GET SCHOOL TICKETS AT ONCE, URGES SUPT. SLATON

Writes Card for Benefit of Parents Who Have Children in School

Brief facts for the convenience of parents who will have children entering the public schools of Atlanta in September are given in a card issued by Superintendent W. M. Slaton. He urges that parents should procure school tickets at once in order to avoid the crowds and consequent irritation of delay, which gather as the time grows near for opening of the school year.

An examination for applicants for teachers' positions in the Atlanta public schools also will be held at the Boys' High school building August 15 and 16. Out-of-town applicants are welcome to take the examination, as new teachers are needed constantly. Deficient regular teachers will take the examinations at the same time.

Facts relating to school tickets for children are as follows:

"The office is open daily for issuing school tickets from 9 to 5 o'clock, except Saturday. On aSturday, the office closes at 12 o'clock.

"All pupils who have never been in the Atlanta schools before are required to get admission tickets.

"All former pupils who were not enrolled at the close of school in June will be required to get new tickets, the same as all new pupils.

"All pupils who attended schools other than the ones of their districts last year will have to be transferred to the schools of their districts. At the opening of the schools each pupil must be enrolled in the school of the district to which he belongs, otherwise he will be sent home.

"Pupils who have moved into new districts must secure transfers to their own schools.

"Parents are urged not to ask for special transfers now. The superintendent is not permitted to consider sending a child out of his district until after the third day of school. Three days are allowed for children in the respective districts to be seated; then if there are vacancies, the superintendent will consider giving special transfers, for good and sufficient reasons.

"New pupils and former pupils of our schools who have not been enrolled during the past two years are required to bring vaccination certificates when coming to the superintendent's office for tickets."

CENTRAL EXCHANGE FOR FIRE DEPT. TELEPHONES

Exchange Will Put Every Fire Station in Atlanta on Same Board

The work of installing a central telephone exchange for the fire department has been started, and the telephones will be in operation soon.

The contract is for a central switchboard, two inserving trunk lines and three two-way trunk lines connecting the chief's station wit hthe twelve other stations.

By the installation of the private branch exchange the service of the department will be facilitated greatly. At present when a telephone call is sent in, the person calling must get the fire station telephone after which the alarm must be sent in to the nearest station. When the branch exchange is working the call will go to the operator who will then have only to connect the exchange with the telephone of the fire station wanted.

The man in charge of the fire alarms at present will operate the exchange.

CHATHAM GIRL GIVEN PARDON BY GOVERNOR

Jack Davis, a twenty-year-old girl who had served 59 days of a 180-day sentence in the Chatham county jail, where she was sent for vagrancy because she could not pay a $100 fine, was today pardoned by Governor John M. Slaton.

Shortly after she was placed in jail she developed appendicitis and an operation was performed. The county physician now declares that she is suffering from incipient tuberculosis.

A Man and His Life

Each man should be able to find life an adventure. The color and lineaments of this adventure will be deepened by pain and failure. The routine of his daily life, will only the more for him for wandering at large in places where the spirit is at liberty. Just as the earth can take what is putrescent, and in a few months make it into wholesome fields of grain, so the mind of each man transmute the distresses of experience into harmony. Such a philosophy accepts all of life—the pain, the fatigue, the thwarting and lifts that dreariness to kindlier uses.

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
GRAND—Motion Pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

A bill of seven Keith acts is the offering at the Forsyth this week. There is a funny sketch, with Robert Dailey as the star, assisted by Miss Hester Armstrong and Harvey Watkins in the presentation of his sketch entitled, "Our Bob."

Cunningham and Marion in comedy gymnastics, present an act away from the ordinary of this sort, and their novel stage setting adds value to the act. They are both clever and entertaining acts on this bill.

The Dolan-Lenharr company in a burlesque on mind reading act create a great deal of laughter, especially when Miss Lenharr accurately describes articles held up in the audience by her laugh-winning partners.

One of the strongest and best chilled choruses of the season is to be seen this week at the Bijou, with "The Girl from Dublin." Another novelty in this week's performance is the singing of the female quartet, which is making a big hit.

THE $55 SHORTHAND COURSE AND $55 BOOKKEEPING COURSE, BOTH FOR THE PRICE OF ONE THIS WEEK ONLY AT THE SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE

As the Southern's Great Offer Draws to a Close the Demand for Scholarships Becomes More Lively. Last Week in Which to Obtain Two $55 Courses for the Price of One

PROF. THOS. L. BRYAN.

Saved, $55!

Are you one of the fortunate ones? The unusual midsummer offer of the Southern Shorthand and Business University, 10 West Mitchell street, this city, will close on Saturday, August 2.

Until then the $55 Shorthand Course and the $55 Bookkeeping Course, both combined, are offered for the price of one course—$55!

While this extraordinary offer is in effect, either of the $55 courses may be obtained at $40!

Since this special offer was announced just a few days ago, the demand for scholarships has been unprecedented.

"Find inclosed check for $55, for which please send me one of the combined scholarships, although I shall not enter school until October," writes a young man at Tallulah Falls.

Others are securing scholarships to be used in August, September and later, just to receive the benefit of the overwhelming reduction now made.

It is not a question of obtaining as low or even a lower rate at some other colleges, but the point of great interest is that you can now secure such a remarkably low rate in the long-established, old reliable, superbly equipped and well-known Southern Shorthand and Business University, "the school that gets results," and naturally the school you prefer to attend.

Remember, the two $55 Courses for the price of one, this week only.

Don't delay, enter now or else buy scholarship now for future entrance, and save this big discount.

"This is the first time in three years that we have puplted sale our scholarships at a reduced rate," said the managers, "and we are doing this merely as a midsummer advertising proposition to invade new territory, the plan being to secure a large list of names of prospective pupils from those who obtain this low-priced scholarship. From this list we hope to secure many pupils at the regular rates, which will be in effect by August 1, and thus be reimbursed for the loss we are now sustaining by this advertising offer."

to introduce as evidence Tuesday afternoon and hung it again upon the wall. The key writing and most of the lines had been erased.

The solicitor again sought to introduce the diagram in evidence. The defense objected. The defense objected even to it being hung where the jury might see it. Attorney Arnold pointed out a heavy dotted line and two crosses and two red dots, assuming that they illustrated the story which the negro, Conley, he supposed, would tell.

Judge Roan asked Mr. Arnold if all the writing which might indicate the meaning of the lines and crosses and dots had been removed. Mr. Arnold admitted that the writing was erased. "But, your honor, writing is not necessary in order to explain a picture of a horse," he argued.

STATE WINS A POINT.

Judge Roan asked Mr. Dorsey: "The lines simply indicate the state's theory, do they not?"

Mr. Dorsey answered affirmatively.

Judge Roan admitted the diagram as evidence, and the jury was brought in and the trial began.

W. W. Rogers, formerly a county police officer, in whose automobile the officers went to the scene of the murder and in which they brought Frank there, went upon the witness stand.

Rogers now is a bailiff in Justice Girardeau's court. He is known as "Boots" Rogers.

Along about April 26, he said, he was operating an automobile for hire between Buckhead and Roswell.

ROGERS TELLS OF TRIP.

On April 26 he was riding around town in his car. That night he was at police headquarters with his car. About 8 o'clock Sunday morning, April 27, a call came to police headquarters from the pencil factory, and he drove some officers up to the factory on Forsyth street.

The officers were let in through the front door by the negro night watchman, Newt Lee. The negro led them to the basement, where they discovered the body of Mary Phagan.

Rogers said that when Detective Starnes used the telephone in the pencil factory office. This was just after day-light—between 5 and 5:30 o'clock. He couldn't recollect exactly what he heard Starnes say, nor did he know what replies came over the wire.

Starnes was asking questions when he came to the pencil factory. He did not know to whome Starnes was talking. He heard him say, "I'll send an automobile for you." The detective hung up the receiver and asked him, the witness: "Will you drive to Mr. Frank's home, 68 East Georgia avenue, and bring him to the factory?" He consented, and went there with Detective Black, the drive occupying five or six minutes.

Detective Black preceded the witness to the door of the home. Black knocked on the door or rang the bell. In "a few minutes" the door was opened by Mrs. Frank. To the best of his recollection Mrs. Frank wore a heavy bathrobe. She opened the door wide and Detective Black and he stepped into the house entrance.

FRANK WAS DRESSED.

Black asked for Mr. Frank. Mrs. Frank called to her husband, and almost instantly he walked through the portieres in the hall toward the door. He was dressed for the street, so far as the exception of collar, tie, coat and hat.

Solicitor Dorsey inquired whether Mrs. Frank also was dressed for the street. Attorney Rosser objected. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

Frank wore a pleated bosom shirt. The witness said he noticed that particularly because it appeared to be ironed so nicely. Solicitor Dorsey requested the witness to be afraid and tell the jury what Frank had on.

Witness replied that he could tell only what he saw. He noticed shoes, blue hose the thoughts, blue trousers, white shirt and suspenders (thethought.

In describing Frank's actions after he entered the reception hall, Rogers testified that Frank walked directly to Detective Black and inquired, "Has anything happened at the factory?" Black did not answer, but hung his head.

FRANK ASKED QUESTIONS.

"Frank then came to me," the witness said, "and asked me the same question, and I did not answer. Turning to Black again, Frank asked 'Did the night watchman call up and report anything to you?'

"To this question Black replied, 'Would better get on your coat and go with us to the factory.'

Rogers testified that he did not hear Starnes hang over the telephone to whomever he was addressing, that a murder had been committed at the factory.

About 3:30 o'clock, he said, he heard Call Officers Anderson, who had Newt Lee in his custody, trying to call some one over the telephone from Frank's office in the pencil factory.

The witness returned to the scene at Frank's house. Frank asked his wife for his collar and tie.

Solicitor Dorsey asked Rogers if anything was said about dreams while he and Black were at Frank's home. The defense objected. Solicitor Dorsey said he was refreshing the mind of the witness from the testimony of the evidence taken at the coroner's inquest. Rogers replied:

FRANK'S DREAM.

"Mr. Frank said something about the phone ringing early that morning. He didn't know whether it actually had rung or whether it was a dream."

Rogers testified that Mrs. Frank asked her husband to drink some coffee before he went to the factory. Frank said, 'Yes, I'd like to have time to drink a cup of coffee." Detective Black said, "I think a drink of whisky would do him good."

Mrs. Frank explained there was no whisky in the house because her father, Emil Selig, had suffered an attack of acute indigestion and had consumed it. Rogers asked Mrs. Frank for some water, put in the automobile of his automobile, and on her permission went back into the kitchen and got a bucket full of it.

There was no preparation being made for breakfast in the kitchen and there was no fire that he saw. There was a gas range there, said the witness. Rogers said that Frank was "extremely nervous," that his voice was refined or strained and "kind of lady-like."

FRANK APPEARED NERVOUS.

Frank was rubbing his hands and put questions abruptly and moved above briskly in the hall. Frank had his hair combed when they arrived at the house, five or six minutes after they left the factory.

"On the trip to town, about how long did it take you?"

"About five or seven minutes. I remember looking down at the speedometer and seeing that it registered forty-one miles an hour."

"What was said about Mary Phagan?"

"One of us, I think it was Black, asked Frank if he knew a girl by the name of Phagan. Frank asked if she worked in the factory. Black said, 'I think so.' Frank said he would look on the pay roll and see. One suggested taking Mr. Frank by the undertaker's, and we went there."

"Did you see a corpse?"

"Yes."

"Describe the place and all about it."

"There is a little hall leading through the place. On the left is a chapel and on the right is a large room. In that room the corpse was laying on a cooling board. The room was dark, but Will Gheesling, who worked there, lit a light behind the corpse. He took off the sheet down and turned her head toward me. I looked back then, to see who was following, and saw Frank step into a little side room to which I after-ward learned was the place where Gheesling slept."

FRANK AT UNDERTAKER'S.

"Did you see him at the corpse?"

"I didn't. I remember looking back to see who was following me, just as the head was turned toward me, and then he stepped into this little room. He could have looked at it, but couldn't have seen the face until Gheesling turned it around."

"Did you have any conversation there?"

"Someone asked Frank if he knew her. He replied that he was not certain, but he thought Mary Phagan and she worked at the factory he could tell there."

At this point the witness said that in the conversation at Frank's residence he had heard Frank tell his wife to call up Darley and have him come to the factory.

"Did Frank ask Black any questions at the undertaker's?"

"I don't remember."

"What was Frank's manner?"

"He still was apparently nervous."

"What did he do or say?"

"Frank moved in his usual manner that *made me think he was nervous—*his quick actions and his quick steps."

Rogers was Frank first told the girl's name?"

"So far as I know, it was in the car coming down when he first heard the name and heard that there had been a murder."

"Did he ask anything about her name at the undertaker's?"

"I don't remember."

"How long were you at the undertaker's?"

ASKED ABOUT ENVELOPE.

"Ten or fifteen minutes. We went from there to thefactory. As we stopped on the street, Frank asked if any police man were going into the factory and Mr. Frank called to them. We all went up the steps together. We went directly to Mr. Frank's office, and he immediately opened the safe and took out the time book. Running his finger down a line, he came to the name Mary Phagan. 'Yes, she was here yesterday to get her pay,' he said. 'Wait and I'll look in the envelope.' I make no notes, he take, my stenographer left at 12 o'clock, the office boy went a few minutes later, and then she came in and got her pay. It was 1:20.'"

"What else was said?"

"Mr. Frank asked if the envelope had been found lying around the factory."

"What day did he say Mary Phagan got her pay?"

"He said 'yesterday,' referring to Saturday. April 26."

"Did he give the time any more accurately than at a little after 12 o'clock?"

"Describe Mr. Frank's manner."

"He still stepped around quickly, and his speech was quick and sharp."

"Describe his countenance."

"I didn't notice especially."

"What about the elevator?"

"After he had opened the safe, and so forth, something came up about where the body was found, and I think he said he wanted to see the place. Frank then went to the time clock and got a switch box by the elevator. He turned this on and the machinery started running."

THE ELEVATOR.

"Was the switch box locked?"

"No, the lock and key were there by it, but it was open."

"What was said about this by Frank?"

"He said that he had been accustomed to keeping it locked until he was told by the insurance company that it was against the law to keep an electric switch box locked. The crowd got into the elevator, and Frank reached for the rope. It was hung (caught), and Mr. Darley helped him to get it loose."

"Describe Frank's manner."

"He still was nervous."

"Go into detail."

"Did you hear Frank ask any questions on the way to the basement?"

"I can't remember."

"Did he then advance any theory about the crime?"

"Frank said that Newt Lee had worked for a long time with Darley and had been at the factory only a short time. If Lee knew anything about it, said Frank, Darley would come nearer than anybody else to getting it out of him."

THE TIME CLOCK.

"Did you see anybody take any punch slip out of the time clock?"

"That was later on after we had left the basement and come back to the office floor. Frank suggested to Darley that they'd better nail up the back door of the factory. Frank and the officers left Lee with me, and after they came back upstairs they took Frank through the factory. When they returned to the office, one of the officers suggested that they'd all better go down to the station house, and Frank, turning to Darley, said, 'I guess I'd better put a new slip on the clock.' Darley said, 'Yes.' Frank took his keys out of his pocket, unlocked the door of the time box on the right, and took out the time slip. He examined the slip and then said it was punched all right.

"Lee was handcuffed and was standing near. Darley also was there. After seeing that the time slip was punched all right, Frank laid it down on the table and went into his office, coming out with a blank slip. While he was in the office getting the new slip, several of us examined the one taken from the clock. When Frank put in the new slip, he asked some of us to help him, and I held a lever. Frank found a pencil in one of the punch holes and asked Lee why it was there. The negro said he put the pencil there so he would punch the right hole and make no mistake.

"Frank locked the clock and on the margin of the slip he wrote with pencil 'April 26, 1913.' Then he folded the slip and carried it back into the inner office. When I examined the slip I noticed just the first two punches especially. One was punched at 6:01 o'clock and the second at 6:32 or 6:33."

"He didn't notice any skips on the slip," said Rogers.

"He thought if there had been any omissions, he would have seen them."

While they were in the office, they heard Frank say several times that he wanted to eat and drink a cup of coffee. Solicitor Dorsey wanted to know if anybody else said anything about coffee. Attorney Rosser objected. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

LITTLE TO SAY OF CRIME.

"Did you hear Frank say anything about getting to get breakfast?" asked the solicitor.

"I don't remember that I did, but while we were at his home Mrs. Frank asked if Mr. Frank couldn't get his breakfast before he left."

"While you were in the factory," the solicitor asked, "did Frank talk much about the murder?"

Frank had very little to say about the murder, replied Rogers. When the officers pointed out where the girl's body had been found in the basement, Frank said, "That's too bad."

Rogers said he did not notice Frank's manner at this time in the factory for any length of time. He was about an hour that morning. From the factory they went to the station in his, Rogers', automobile. Darley was in the rear seat inside the witness, and Frank sat on Darley's knee.

Newt Lee, the negro nightwatchman, was in the rear seat with Detective Black. As far as the witness knew, nothing had been said to indicate that Frank was under arrest. At police headquarters the officers took Frank to the detective chief's office on the third floor. Rogers did not go upstairs with them. He stayed behind to take his sister-in-law home.

Replying to questions by the solicitor the witness said he met Detective Starnes on the day he was sworn at the station house. He did see Newt Lee write. Somecf the officers were writing. The solicitor asked if Frank had to be close to me memory about his testimony on this point before the coroner's jury. Attorney Rosser objected. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

Solicitor Dorsey asked Rogers if he had seen the officers do anything with Frank after he got to the station house. Attorney Rosser objected. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

The witness stated that if Rogers saw Frank with a pencil in hand.

ANOTHER OBJECTION SUSTAINED.

Taking up the stenographic record of the testimony at the coroner's inquest, the solicitor stated that he desired to ask the witness what he swore at the inquest. Attorney Rosser objected. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

The solicitor then asked Rogers about Frank's appearance while at the station house. Frank was nervous, said Rogers, just like he was when the witness first saw him at his home and like he was at the factory. Asked to describe his actions, he said Frank jumped from the car immediately it was stopped in front of the station; that he walked rapidly and nervously into the station; that his words were hasty and spoke were uttered in a nervous and excited manner. Darley followed Frank to Chief Lanford's office. Rogers did not observe Frank's hands at the station.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Rogers was cross-examined by At torney Rosser.

Rogers testified that he had not seen Frank before that Sunday morning when he went to his home and got him. He did not know Frank's usual actions and mode of expression. He couldn't say whether Frank was perturbed or excited more than usual.

When the officers arrived at the factory, very early that morning, they walked first to the second floor and rang for Newt Lee to come down and open the door.

Rogers admitted that they could not tell, at first, whether the body was that of a white or negro girl. They had to pull down one stocking and wipe her face off before they could tell. Rogers said that the cord cut into the flesh of the body's neck, but the skin wasn't broken.

The piece of her underskirt around her neck was over the cord. Attorney Rosser questioned witness closely about the time when they returned to town and took Frank to the undertaking parlor. Attorney Rosser asked Rogers if Detective Black did not buy a drink drink would do them all good.

"Not in those words" answered Rogers. He reported what Mrs. Frank had said about her father having consumed all the whisky in the house. Frank and Mrs. Frank and the lawyers laughed.

Attorney Rosser asked Rogers what he said about Mary Phagan's pay envelope before the coroner's jury. Rogers said that he told the coroner's jury about it, but couldn't recall his exact words.

When they visited the undertaking establishment, said Rogers, he did not know whether Frank and Black were inside when the light over Mary Phagan's body was switched on.

Mr. Rosser asked him if he didn't know Black was leaning against one side of the door which opened into the other side. He didn't know whether they were or not. He wouldn't attempt to say that Frank didn't look at the corpse then.

"Didn't you know that Gheesling was looking at Frank when he turned the light on?" asked Mr. Rosser. Rogers said no.

Mr. Rosser developed from the witness that the elevator appeared to be a matter of importance to Frank, and the witness declined to say that it stopped with a bump. Mr. Rosser also brought out the fact that when Darley came to Frank's home he asked him if they started the elevator, it started toward the top, but Darley stopped it, and then Frank took hold of the rope and ran the elevator to the basement.

Rogers testified that when they found the body it lay with its head toward the front and its feet diagonally across toward the right rear corner.

BRUISES ON BODY.

The body was lying on its front, with the arms by the sides. The face looked toward the right wall.

Attorney Rosser brought out a repetition of testimony about bruises and slight cuts on the face, and about the examination of the body by the police. One of the stocking supporters was broken, testified the witness. Her undergarments were torn.

Rogers stayed about twenty minutes in the basement and then left to go with the undertaker and to go after his sister-in-law, who identified the body. Attorney Rosser developed the fact that Frank went to police headquarters from the factory willingly and readily.

"When you first saw the body in the basement, could you tell by the hair whether it was that of a white person?"

Rogers answered that at first glance it looked like the hair of a white girl, but he couldn't tell from the face. Both Rosser and Dorsey interrupted the witness. The solicitor said that what he wanted to know was, at first glance, whether he could tell by the hair that the body was that of a white person. Rogers admitted that he could not know what Frank's position was when he, Rogers, entered the undertaker's room. Frank might have been close to where he, the witness, stood. he could not have seen the face.

Attorney Rosser interrupted again, striving to draw from the witness an admission that it was possible for Frank to have seen the face or the body without Rogers knowing about it. The witness repeated that he did not think Frank saw the girl's face.

Solicitor Dorsey asked to go over with the witness the testimony he gave on direct examination about this point.

ANOTHER TILT.

Addressing the court, the solicitor said: "All I want to know, your honor, is whether it was possible for Frank to see the girl's face. If not, why not?"

The solicitor put this question to the witness.

"What, if anything, prevented Frank from seeing the girl's face when he turned off into the little room?" asked Solicitor Dorsey. Attorney Rosser rose to interrupt, the witness replied: "The body was lying so that he couldn't have seen it."

"What was it you testified about the envelope?" asked the solicitor.

Mr. Rosser objected. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

Addressing the witness, Attorney Rosser inquired:

"Didn't you tell me that when the girl's face was turned toward you, you were intent upon looking at it and didn't know where Frank was?"

"Yes," answered the witness.

"Come down," said Mr. Rosser.

Solicitor Dorsey interposed another question.

"When Frank went into the room, the girl's face was turned toward the wall, was it not?"

"Yes," replied the witness.

"Come down," said the solicitor.

"Come out!" said Rosser, snapped Mr. Rosser. "You were so busy looking at the girl's body that he could have seen she face and you wouldn't have known it."

ROGERS LEAVES STAND.

"He could have seen the body but not the face. To see the face he would have had to go somewhere close to where I was standing."

"You just said, did you not, that you didn't know where he was?"

"Yes."

"Come down," commanded Mr. Rosser.

"Didn't you testify that Frank didn't enter the room where the body lay?"

"Yes, sir," answered the witness.

"And that he stepped off into a side room?"

"Yes."

"Come down," said Mr. Dorsey.

Miss Grace Hix, sister-in-law of "Boots" Rogers, who preceded her on the stand, was called as the next witness.

Miss Hix said that she had known Mary Phagan ever since Mary had worked at the pencil factory, nearly a year. Miss Hix worked with her in the metal room at the factory on the second floor. Mary was a pretty girl about thirteen years old and was well developed for her age. Mary and the other girls working there registered four times a day at the time clock, said the witness, checking in at the beginning of the day's work, out and in again at noon, and out at night.

Mary's machine was next to the dressing room, said the witness, and stains were found on the floor. Frank made visits through the metal room at least once a day, she said, sometimes the oftener would see him elsewhere in the factory.

MARY LAID OFF.

The last day that Mary had worked prior to the murder was on the preceding Monday. Mary had been laid off three days because the metal giving out.

Solicitor Dorsey questioned her closely about the metal and where it was kept. His questions indicated that this will become an important point in the state's case.

Using Mary Phagan's parasol, handed to her by Solicitor Dorsey, Miss Hix pointed out the metal room on the chart. She pointed out also a little room alongside it, occupied by Lemmie Quinn, the foreman, as an office, and the men's and women's toilets.

Solicitor Dorsey asked her if any of the metal had come between Monday and Saturday of that week. She replied that none had come. Mr. Dorsey asked her if she knew whether or not Frank was aware that the metal supply had given out. She didn't know.

She said that although Saturday was the usual payday, the majority were paid off on Friday night of this particular week, between 6 and 7 o'clock. On the Wednesday preceding the murder, Lemmie Quinn, the foreman, had called her up and told her the girls would be paid off Friday.

With Mary Phagan's parasol again, Miss Hix pointed out Frank's office on the second floor, the time clocks, and the probable course anyone would take in going from Frank's office to the metal room in the rear on that floor. She pointed out Mary Phagan's machine in the metal room.

GOOD DEFENSE WITNESS.

Miss Grace Hix was cross-examined by Attorney Rosser. She made about as good a witness for the defense as Rosser for the prosecution. Mr. Rosser bringing out several material points. Miss Hix said that a person standing by the time clock could not see into Mr. Frank's private office.

While Frank often passed through the metal room to see how things were going on, he seldom spoke any of the girls. She remembered only three times in about a year that he had spoken to her, and one of those times was when she went to him to borrow a quarter.

Miss Hix said that she did not know whether Frank knew her name. The floor of the factory was quite dirty, and there were several buckets of a dark liquid in which sponges also different colored paints were used around the factory.

She knew that they used blue and white chalk, but was not sure about red paint. Only four girls worked in the department—herself, Magnolia Kennedy, Helen Ferguson and Mary Phagan. She and Helen and Magnolia got their pay on Friday afternoon. They went to the factory together some time after 6 o'clock.

In the metal room she and the other girls were accustomed to comb their hair only a few feet from Mary Phagan's machine. Magnolia Kennedy, she said, had hair of almost exactly the same color as Mary Phagan's. She described that hair as about two shades darker than her own.

Asked to point out somebody in the court room whose hair was about the same color, she pointed to Attorney Arnold. Then she hurriedly combed their hair when they were getting ready to leave the factory.

She described Mary Phagan as being stockily built, quite a strong girl, who would weigh about 115 pounds. Miss Hix said that Darley, as general foreman, employed the help and Frank had very little to do with it. She described the distance between the time clock and the office as about ten feet.

She never saw Frank manipulate or have anything to do with the time clock, she said. She identified a pencil handed to her as one similar to the pencils which she helped to make.

On re-direct examination, Solicitor Dorsey developed from the witness that she had not seen posted notices that Saturday, April 26, would be a holiday and that employes of the factory would be paid off Friday afternoon.

DIDN'T SEE NOTICE.

She admitted that probably she would have seen it had one been posted. These notice cards, said the witness, usually were tacked about at different places in the factory, and usually about a week before the holiday which they related to. She saw no such cards on the Monday before the murder. Mary Phagan worked on that day. Foreman Quinn never had phoned her before. On this particular occasion he telephoned to her Friday after dinner.

Miss Hix said that she still works at the pencil factory. She did not know where the uncalled-for pay envelopes were kept, but thought they were kept in the office. Solicitor Dorsey endeavored to have the witness state whether a person punching the clock could be seen from Frank's desk in the inner office. Witness did not know which desk Frank occupied. Neither did she know the location of the inner office, when opened, obstructed the view of the clock from Frank's office. She does not enter the private office, she said.

Solicitor Dorsey questioned the witness in much detail as to where the paint was kept and how it was used. She said that the paint was kept in the polishing room, a different department from the metal room in which Mary Phagan worked.

The door or entrance to the polishing room is about four or five feet from the door of the metal room in front of which the red spots were found. She never had seen any paint in the metal room, and never had seen drops of paint on the floor outside the polishing room, close to the dressing room and cooler.

Solicitor Dorsey wanted to know whether she could tell whether or not what she saw was paint. She answered in the affirmative. She added, however, that she had never seen any red paint outside of the polishing room.

Attorney Rosser interposed a question. He wanted to know if the floors throughout the factory are not stained and dirty, and if the stains on the floors are not mixed as to make it hard to distinguish among them. Miss Hix answered that the floors are very dirty and that if paint remains on them for two or three days the dirt would cover it so it would be hard to tell whether it was paint or not.

Miss Hix was excused.

BLACK TAKES STAND.

City Detective John Black was called to the stand.

Detective Black said he had been on the detective force for six years. Before that he was a cooper.

Black testified that he was awakened about 4:30 o'clock on the morning of April 27 by Police Sergeant Bullard, who called him over the telephone and told him of the murder. He went from home to the police station, arriving there about 5 o'clock. He talked to Newt Lee at police headquarters from about 5 to 5:30 o'clock, he said. Then he went to the pencil factory, arriving there shortly before 6 o'clock.

About 6 o'clock Detective Starnes called Frank over the telephone and told him they wanted him at the pencil factory and requested him to send automobile out to get him. He went with Boots Rogers in the automobile to Frank's home, and in answer to a ring Mrs. Frank came to the door. She wore a bath robe. He told her he wanted to see Mr. Frank. A moment later Frank stepped from behind some curtains in the hall.

Solicitor Dorsey asked Black if he had seen Frank before that moment. Black replied that on several occasions he had encountered Frank at the pencil factory on cases which took him to the factory. On the occasions, said Black, he had a conversation with Frank. On that occasion, said he, there was nothing unusual in Frank's demeanor.

FRANK'S MANNER.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the detective as to Frank's manner on the morning of April 27. Frank was very nervous that morning, said the detective. The solicitor asked him to explain, and Attorney Rosser objected.

Argument followed. Attorney Rosser said: "If my brother (Dorsey) would sit down and quit smiling at me, I'd be happy." Judge Roan sustained the solicitor. The question was repeated.

Black answered that he was very nervous, and had trouble putting on his collar and tie. Frank mentioned breakfast twice, said Black. He asked questions rapidly. Frank asked him if anything had happened at the pencil factory and before he could answer that question, asked him if the night watchman had reported anything to the police. Black said that he gave indirect answers to both questions, and told Frank simply he'd better dress and come down to the factory with him.

Black said that he was watching Frank insisted, too, that he wanted a face seemed pale. Frank's voice was hoarse and trembly. Black said that Frank insisted, too, that he wanted a cup of coffee before he left the house. "What else was said in the automobile when you were going to the factory?"

"Frank wanted to know what had happened, and I asked him if he knew a girl by the name of Mary Phagan and told him that her dead body had been found in the basement. Frank said he didn't remember such a girl, but he knew very few of the girls employed in the factory.

TRIP TO MORGUE.

"I suggested that we go by the undertaker's shop. When we entered the undertaker's, one of the undertakers was in front. Rogers followed him. Frank went next, and I followed Frank. When the undertaker lifted the sheet down, Mr. Frank looked at her and stepped aside. I would say that he glanced at her casually."

"Do you know that he saw her face?"

"I can't say."

"Did you see Gheesling turn her head over?"

"Yes," that was just about the time Frank stepped aside."

"What did he do then?" asked Mr. Rosser. Where did he go?"

"He stepped behind a curtain."

"Could he see the body from there?"

"No."

STEPPED AWAY FROM BODY.

"Did he ever go into the room where the body was?"

"Except for that first time I can't say that he did. After he stepped behind the curtain he went away from the body."

The solicitor was interrupted by Attorney Rosser, who declared that he was "ridiculing" the witness. After a little tilt the solicitor was allowed to proceed.

"What did Frank say then?"

"I asked him if he knew the girl, and he answered that he did not know her just then, but thought from her dress that he had paid her Saturday and could tell by going to the factory."

"How long did you stay at the undertaker's?"

"About five minutes. We went from there to the factory, and just as we drove up we saw Mr. Darley and another man. There was a general conversation as we went up the stairs."

Court adjourned to the court at that point, 12:25 o'clock, until 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

A large crowdr than at preceding sessions was waiting outside the court house when the doors were opened Wednesday afternoon. Shortly before 2 o'clock as many as could find seats were allowed to enter, and a number were turned away. A number of women were among the crowd.

Court re-convened at 2 o'clock.

FRANK JURORS IDLE AWAY LONG HOURS WITH SONG

They Sing Ballads and Tell Irish Tales During the "Recess" Hours

Jurors in the Frank trial have organized a singing club. Their purpose is not to give diversity to the trial with a note of song, but to while away the time between sessions of court.

When Judge L. S. Roan gives word that the trial has proceeded far enough for the day, jurors are taken for a brief, brisk walk, and then to their residence for the nonce, which consists of two large rooms thrown together at the Kimball house.

There the twelve take up their quarters for the night, and remain until the beginning of the court session upon the next day. Twelve cots have been placed in the three connecting rooms, and there the twelve jurors sleep. Until the trial is ended they will have no opportunity of seeing home folks, but they are permitted to send mesages through deputy sheriffs.

Still, this routine: court room throughout the day, and the three rooms at the Kimball as a bedroom for the night, grows uncomfortable.

Yet, song is a comfort for most of life's distress, so, the jury has taken to singing. They sing ballads and tell Irish stories. Deputies in attendance on jury report that the song club has all but reconciled the twelve men to the prospect of another week of jury duty.

TRIAL THUS FAR HAS ONLY ESTABLISHED MURDER OF THE GIRL

Tuesday Afternoon's Session Hears of Beginning of Police Investigation Into Mystery of Mary Phagan's Murder

Following in the sequence which it began with the introduction of the first witness, the prosecution of the murder charge against Leo M. Frank progressed Tuesday afternoon to the point at which the city detectives began their investigation of te murder mystery.

Beginning with Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary Phagan, who saw her leave home about noon of April 26, the state established in succession her arrival at the corner of Marietta and Forsyth streets, and departure thence for the factory two blocks away—this by the newsboy, George Eppes; finding of her dead body fifteen hours later, in the pencil factory basement—this by the night watchman, Newt Lee; the arrival of the police and their official survey of the surroundings—this by Sergeant L. S. Dobbs; the beginning of teh detectives' investigation and the arrival of Leo M. Frank in physical person upon the scene—this by Detective J. N. Starnes, who appears formally as the prosecutor of the charge against Frank.

Thus, therefore, the state has established the very necessary foundation of fact that Mary Phagan was murdered in the pencil factory.

The session Tuesday afternoon was punctuated by objections by the state or the defense to questions put by the opposing side to witnesses on the stand, and by arguments between state and defense over these points.

Sergeant Dobbs and the other officers examined the basement and failed to find any notes or pads except the two notes and the pad found beside the body he said. They failed too to discover any pads on the first floor of the factory. There was no blood on the ground or in the sawdust where the body was found.

Attorney Rosser asked him if he went carefully into the trash pile in his search. No, he didn't dig it all up, said the witness.

Picking up the hasp which had been found drawn from the back door, Mr. Rosser handed it to the witness and secured his admission that it was slightly bent to one side. Sergeant Dobbs said he could not say how the hasp was removed, but that it must have been drawn straight out from the inside of the basement; that the door apparently had been opened from the inside.

Mr. Rosser read the sergeant's testimony at the coroner's inquest with reference to the dragging trail leading from the elevator to the dust bin, and also with reference to the size of the trap door in the first floor.

Apparently the attorney sought to bring out that the trail did not lead all the way from the front of the elevator, but from somewhere near the corner of it close to the ladder. He also sought to establish the fact from the witness that the trap door hole was not so small that two persons could not pass through it. Witness protested that he got through himself with great difficulty; that the hole is small.

City Detective J. N. Starnes, who is known in the case as the prosecutor of Leo M. Frank, was next called to the stand.

STARNES' TESTIMONY.

Detective Starnes testified that he went to the pencil factory about 5 o'clock on Sunday, April 27, and made a minute examination of the basement. He testified at length as to the position of the hasp and lock on the basement door. The substance of this testimony was that the staple could not possibly have been drawn from the outside. He declared that there was a small piece of pipe on the inside, which evidently had been used to pull the staple, as directly beneath, the hasp's position on the woodwork was an indentation which this pipe fitted.

There was another larger piece of pipe, he said, which had been placed against the door to prevent it being opened from the outside, and this pipe was in place when he made his examination.

Detective Starnes said that he took Newt Lee back to the pencil factory that Sunday morning following a conference between Chief of Detectives Lanford and Detective Black and himself. Wetective Black went with them, he said.

The first thing he did on arriving at the factory was to call Frank's house on the telephone. He got a response shortly and got Frank on the telephone and told him to come down to the pencil factory right away.

PHONED TO FRANK.

Frank replied that he had had no breakfast and that he didn't want to come until after him, and something. Starnes said he impressed on him the urgency of coming and offered to send an automobile after him, and that Frank then agreed to come.

The automobile went out and got him. Starnes said that he did not tell Frank why he wanted him to come to the factory. There was no way for Frank to find out that there had been a murder at the factory, he said, as he reached there thirty minutes or less after th etelephone conversation.

"What was the attitude of the negro Lee?" asked the solicitor.

Attorney Rosser objected. There was an argument for about five minutes, all counsel participating.

NEWT LEE WAS CALM.

Starnes replied that the negro seemed composed when the took him up to the pencil factory that morning.

Mr. Dorsey asked Detective Starnes about the appearance of Frank. Starnes said that the first time he saw Frank was when Frank, with several other men walked into the factory where he, the witness, had Lee. Among the other men was General Manager Darley, of the pencil factory. The remaining Starnes heard Frank say was a remark addressed to Mr. aDrley: "You see, I've got another suit."

Attorney Hooper, for the state, declared that inasmuch as Attorney Rosser had been allowed to make an attack on Lee during his cross-examination of the negro, he believed this to be admissible in rebuttal.

Judge Roan said he would allow the question if Solicitor Dorsey insisted.

"I insist, your honor," said Mr. Dorsey. He was allowed to repeat his question.

SAYS FRANK WAS NERVOUS.

Starnes admitted that when he was talking with Frank over the telephone he told him who it was that was talking to him.

Solicitor Dorsey wanted to know if Frank had said anything in addition to what he said to Darley about another suit; whether he mentioned breakfast or coffee or anything like that. Starnes said he did not hear anything like that. Frank appeared to be very nervous, said the witness. When pressed to particularize as to why Frank appeared nervous, Starnes said he showed himself nervous in contrast with other men there. Upon objection by Attorney Rosser, Judge Roan ruled out that portion of Starnes' testimony relative to the contrast with other men's appearance. Frank's manner was nervous, said Starnes. He was rather "trembly," not composed. Frank and Darley went upstairs somewhere. While telephoning to Frank, said Starnes, he did not tell Frank what had happened at the factory, nor did he do so when Frank came to the factory. He didn't know Frank and didn't speak to him.

About the time clock punch slips, Detective Starnes said that about a week after the murder, possibly Friday night, he read something in the paper which caused him to get out of bed and go to the factory. There he induced the night watchman to show him how the punch clock was operated. The watchman, said he, made a complete record of the dial in five minutes; and this record covered the half-hour punching periods from 6 to 6 o'clock, or twelve hours. Starnes said he was not present when Frank referred to Newt Lee's punch slip record. Starnes identified the card taken from Mary Phagan's neck. He identified other similar cards which he himself had taken from the finishing room adjoining the metal department on the second floor of the factory. Each of these cards had a slip knot on it, just like the knot on the card found around the girl's neck. Starnes indicated on the diagram the room in which he found the cards.

FINDS BLOOD SPOTS.

Starnes continued that he had found a number of cards similar to that found around the neck of Mary Phagan's body, in the factory, especially in the basement. He didn't remember finding any more on the second floor. On Monday he was called to the factory and found on the floor about two and a half feet from the dressing room in the rear of the second floor some splotches which looked like blood. He described them as covering a spot about the size of his hand, with smaller drops spattered around. Over these blood spots had been smeared some white substance.

He described in detail the rear of the building on the second floor, including the toilet and the door which leads to the steps going up to the third floor at the backs. He identified a picture on the diagram as being a reproduction of the fastenings on that door.

The witness said that on a nail about fifty feet from the partition on the second floor, about a third of the way from the double doors toward the elevator, he found a nail on the head of which there was some blood and he pulled it from the floor, and he took it to police headquarters. There was a little blood—just a little—about on the floor near the nail.

The distance between the double doors and the spot where he found the large blood stain in front of the dressing room, said he, is about thirteen feet.

Solicitor Dorsey concluded the direct examination by asking the detective how long it takes a person to walk from Marietta street along Forsyth to the National Pencil factory?

"About three minutes," answered the detective.

Attorney Rosser took up the cross-examination of Detective Starnes. The detective admitted that he had guessed at the length of time required by the walk from Marietta street to the pencil factory. The witness said he thought it should not take more than five minutes to get off a car on Marietta street, walk along Forsyth to the pencil factory and up the steps to Frank's office.

STAPLE SLIGHTLY BENT.

Attorney Rosser secured an admission from Starnes that the staple pulled from the rear door was bent slightly. Attorney Rosser asked him about the finding of Mary Phagan's hat on the trash pile. Starnes said that he picked it up from the trash pile about 6 o'clock on Sunday morning, but that he does not think he was the original discoverer of it. The shoe had been removed by another officer, he said. He said further that he found a gas pipe near the door, and that in his opinion it was used as a fulcrum for a lever with which the staple was pulled.

Attorney Rosser asked Starnes if, when he called Frank, "Boots" Rogers was standing near in the same room. Starnes did not remember. Attorney Rosser asked him if he hadn't heard Boots Rogers' testimony before the coroner's jury about Starnes calling Frank on the telephone.

Solicitor Dorsey objected, and the point was argued about 10 minutes. Mr. Rosser contended that inasmuch as Starnes appears as the prosecutor, he immediately should have refuted any misstatement by Rogers.

ASKED TO REPEAT TESTIMONY.

Judge Roan instructed Mr. Rosser as to how he might ask the question. Mr. Rosser, announcing that he wanted to test the memory of the witness, picked up the stenographic reports of the coroner's inquest and requested him to repeat just wwhat he had testified on the two occasioions when he appeared as a witness before the coroner.

Solicitor Dorsey objected immediately, declaring that such a question was not a proper one. It was irrelevant except for the purpose of impeaching the witness, he said. Mr. Rosser was endeavoring without calling the witness' attention to any specific part of his testimony, to show that he couldn't recall it and thereby discredit his recollection now of the telephone conversation.

Attorney Arnold, for the defense, answered this objection. "Your honor, my friend the solicitor has been complaining about the time wasted here on these controversies, and I dare say more time has been wasted right over this one point than would be required to develop the evidence we are seeking."

"That's all right," shouted the solicitor. "I want to try this case according to law."

"So do we," declared Mr. Arnold. He argued that the defense desired to sift the witness in an effort to test his memory. If the witness' memory about other details three days after the crime was defective, argued Mr. Arnold, still less dependence could be placed in it no wasewhat months after the murder. Judge Roan ruled that the defense should not ask the witness to repeat verbatim all he testified to before the coroner's jury, but that the defense could outline some part of his testimony and ask him to repeat that.

Mr. Rosser propounded practically the same question as before.

Solicitor Dorsey objected vigorously again.

"I thought your honor had ruled on this point," he declared.

"I have ruled," said the judge.

"Well, then I want you to enforce the rule," demanded the solicitor.

"Sit down and I will," said the court.

DORSEY AGAIN OBJECTS.

Mr. Rosser renewed the argument as to his right to an answer to the question he had asked the witness. He said that he wanted the witness to repeat if he could just what he had told the coroner's jury.

Solicitor Dorsey promptly entered another objection, insisting that Mr. Rosser should indicate to the witness just what portion of his testimony he desired him to repeat. Mr. Rosser then inquired if the witness could give the very words he used at the inquest. Starnes replied that he would find it difficult, adding that he wouldn't say now that his version of the telephone conversation was a verbatim account of it, but that he had repeated it to the best of his recollection. Attorney Rosser asked the witness whether Frank had said anything in the telephone conversation which at that time appeared significant to the witness.

Solicitor Dorsey objected, declaring that it was totally irrelevant except for the purpose of impeaching the witness, he said. Mr. Rosser was endeavoring without calling the witness' attention to any specific part of his testimony, to show that he couldn't recall it and thereby discredit his recollection now of the telephone conversation.

Attorney Arnold, for the defense, answered this objection. "Your honor, my friend the solicitor has been complaining about the time wasted here on these controversies, and I dare say more time has been wasted right over this one point than would be required to develop the evidence we are seeking."

"That's all right," shouted the solicitor. "I want to try this case according to law."

"So do we," declared Mr. Arnold. He argued that the defense desired to sift the witness in an effort to test his memory. If the witness' memory about other details three days after the crime was defective, argued Mr. Arnold, still less dependence could be placed in it no wasw

SUFFRAGETTES TO ENTER WASHINGTON WEDNESDAY

Advance Guard Camped at Hyattsville, Md., Waiting for Auto Parade

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The advance guard of the crusading suffragists converging on the capital by automobiles from all parts of the country, is gathering today in Hyattsville, Md., in preparation for the automobile parade to the capital tomorrow, when the women will present to the senate their petitions asking for "votes for women." Among the arrivals was Miss Margaret Foley, of Boston, known to her sisters as the "suffragist with the brogue," because of her oratorical powers. A dozen other states, in addition to Massachusetts, were represented by dusty though enthusiastic automobile loads of women.

In order that there may be no repetition of the scenes that marked the big suffrage parade of March 3, Superintendent of Police Sylvester will provide a heavy escort of mounted and bicycle policemen to accompany the women on their parade to the capitol. A permit for the procession already has been issued. A reception to the incoming crusaders will be held at Hyattsville at 9 o'clock tomorrow, several members of congress being among the speakers who will welcome the women. The start for Washington will be made two hours later, the intention being to arrive at the capitol just at noon, when the senate convenes.

BATTERY OF ARTILLERY PROPOSED FOR ROME, GA.

Barry Wright, Floyd Representative, Interested in Movement

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., July 30.—A movement is on foot to secure the establishment of a battery of artillery at Rome, thus completing a battalion, there being two batteries in the state, one at Atlanta, and one in Savannah. It is believed that the necessary enlistments can readily be secured.

Barry Wright, formerly captain of the Rome military company, has interested himself in the project. If the battery is formed, it will no doubt be known as the Cherokee artillery, in honor of the gallant body of men who fought through the war under Captain Max Van Den Corput.

That battery bore the name of the Cherokee artillery. Captain Corput's battery saw service in many of the engagements of the war between the states, and occupied the position of honor on Lookout Mountain during the fighting of November 24, 1863. The battery was reorganized after the war, but was disbanded in 1886.

Jacksonville Mayor Says Whipping Post Would Allay Crime

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 30.—"What can be done to allay the wave of crime in this section and what can you suggest as a remedy?" was the question put to Mayor Swearingen this morning.

"A whipping post."

The answer came quickly, and was backed up with a good argument by the mayor, who, through his experience as a police judge, is quite able to judge as to what would have the best effect upon the hardened criminal, who treats jail life as a luxury.

The mayor in his advocacy of whipping post states that there is no reason why bodily punishment would not have its effect upon the criminal, at the present time, as it did in times of old.

In his argument in favor of the punishment in public, he stated that in slavery days the negro was civilized by the whipping post and seldom if ever was he brought up for a second time for the lash. In the old colonial days the whipping post was the very best remedy and the punishment by whipping in public for crime in the smaller charges, had its everlasting effect and kept crime in the minimum.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Immediate reorganization of third and fourth class postoffices in Illinois, because of alleged pernicious political activity by postmasters, was proposed to President Wilson today by a delegation of Illinois congressmen accompanied by state Senator Kent E. Keller.

Keller, who acted as spokesman, alleged many instances of irregularities in the examination of employes under civil service regulations, and asked the president to at least immediately replace half the postoffice inspectors in the state by Democratic appointees.

Mad Dog Shot

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TIFTON, Ga., July 30.—A mad dog which had been running loose on the streets of Tifton for several hours and had bitten three other dogs and two cows, was shot and killed on the outskirts of the city Tuesday morning by Superintendent W. W. Reynolds, of the street department. Fortunately the dog had bitten no one, though it snapped at several people. The head has been cut off and will be sent to the pasteur institute. Meanwhile all the dogs that were bitten have been shut up for some time.

Greene Court Convenes

GREENSBORO, Ga., July 30.—Although no murder cases are docketed for trial in the Greene superior court now in session, it is thought that one of the most interesting cases to be taken up will be that of Lucindy Park, a young negro girl, charged with attempting to poison the family of B. P. Kimbrough, a prominent farmer and dairyman, residing about two miles from Greensboro.

NANKING HAS RETURNED TO THE SIDE OF PEKING

High Officials at Shanghai Notified That Nanking Rebellion Is Off

(By Associated Press.)

SHANGHAI, July 30.—The chamber of commerce of Nanking telegraphed today to the military governor of the province of Kiang Su and also to a number of high officials at Shanghai, the following dispatch:

"General Huang Sing, commander-in-chief of the southern forces, has left Nanking. The proclamation of independence issued there has been cancelled. The city is quiet."

A naval wireless dispatch today confirms the return of the city of Nanking to its allegiance to the northern government.

Now Believed Permanent Cabinet Will Be Formed

(By Associated Press.)

PEKING, July 30.—The return of Nanking to the side of the Peking government is considered here as having taken away the corner stone from the southern rebellion. The Chinese senate today approved the nomination of Hsiung Hsiling, former minister of finance, as premier, and it is believed that a permanent cabinet will now be formed.

Hail Storm

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., July 30.—Following a severe thunder and celetrical storm and heavy rain, a healthy hail fell in Putnam county last night, thus beginning, according to the local weather prophets, a forty days' siege. Suburban farmers and those out in the county reached by phone viewed the hail with alarm, but feel more reassured of small damage to growing crops with the arrival of daylight and sunshine today. Very little damage is the general report from over the county.

Beef Steak Eating

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 30.—The annual beef steak eating contest of the Sol Brenner association of the East Side was won yesterday by Frank Dostal, the "mayor of Avenue B," who disposed of 8 3-4 pounds of steak. Three others competing ate between five and eight pounds each.

Truck Farmers Blame Big Wireless Station For Lack of Showers

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 30.—The fact that the Long Island village of Sayville has been deprived of the recent thunder showers, which have visited this vicinity, is attributed by some of the disappointed truck gardeners to the effect which the large wireless station there may have upon atmospheric conditions. There has been no rain at Sayville for more than six weeks and a withering drouth is reported, while towns all around there have had several heavy downpours.

The wireless plant at Sayville is one of the most powerful in the world, having a main shaft 500 feet high, to which are attached hundreds of wires. Farmers who have inquired of the radio inspection bureau of the department of commerce and labor as to whether wireless plants deflect thunderstorms, learn that if such is the case, the instance at Sayville is the first time it has been reported.

Pomeroy Attempts Escape

BOSTON, July 30.—Jesse Harding Pomeroy, the notorius murderer who for thirty-nine years has been confined within state prison walls, recently planned another attempt to escape, according to Charlestown prison officials. Guards found a long steel spike and a piece of tin in Pomeroy's cell a few days ago. When questioned he would only say that he found the articles while he was exercising in the prison yard.

Pomeroy has made several unsuccessful attempts to escape. A year ago, by using a piece of tin, he succeeded in cutting his way out of the cell, but was captured by a guard in the corridor.

Eighteen-Foot Ballot

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 30.—The fourteen foot ballot which came in for so much ridicule during the election primaries last fall, has been outdone by one eighteen feet long, which will be used in the Democratic primaries in the Twenty-third assembly district here this fall. There is no press in New York big enough to take the ballots at a single impression. They will have to be printed in six-foot sections and pasted together like circus bills.

COLEBROOK, N. H., July 30.—In this town of 2,000 inhabitants, over 200 persons recently have undergone operations for appendicitis.

MERRITT W. DIXON LEADS FOR CHATHAM SHERIFF

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 30.—At noon today it appeared that Merritt W. Dixon, known as the administration candidate for sheriff of Chatham county, was leading in the primary election. The election is being held to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Captain T. F. Screven, and there is much interest in the outcome. Mr. Dixon is opposed by Robert Saussy.

At noon the Dixon supporters were claiming the election by from 300 to 1,000 majority.

A. A. Lawrence, as chairman of the Democratic executive committee, has charge of the election. The nominee today will be elected formally at a special election called next week.

CLAIMS MINCEY, WHEN NEEDED, WILL TESTIFY

Attorney for Defense Says the State Won't Hurt His Character

"Mincey will be Johnny-on-the-spot when the defense needs him to testify." Th[illegible] were the words of Joseph Leav[illegible], one of the lawyers for the defense in speaking Tuesday afternoon of the affidavit sworn to some time ago by W. H. Mincey, by which the defense hopes to prove that Jim Conley confessed to Mincey that he killed a girl on the day Mary Phagan was murdered.

Attorney Leavitt would not say where Mincey was staying, but declared that he was in town, that he had been with him Tuesday afternoon, and that he would stick to his affidavit when called upon to testify.

It is known that Mincey stayed Monday night at the Williams house No. 2, where he registered as coming from Rising Fawn, Ga. Attorney Leavitt says that Mincey has been teaching school there since he left Atlanta.

"It is rumored," said Attorney Leavitt, "That the state will try to break down Mincey's character. I don't care how many affidavits they get against him; I can bring forward hundreds of prominent Atlanta people, teachers, preachers, and merchants, who will swear that Mincey is an honest man. And I'll subpoena 'em, too."

the minds of experienced baseball men as to the ability of Holland to develop into one of the best players the game has ever known, and he has not been out of the game through any lack of handsome offers. Many of the contracts offered carried with them a larger salary than the Atlanta club can pay, yet Holland remained patriotic and decided to play for his home people.

Since finishing his college course two seasons ago Holland has been engaged in the electrical busines, though at odd moments he would engage in a bit of baseball. This season he has been with one of the City league clubs and has managed to hit around a measly .520. He always keeps in the very best of physical condition, and it will take him no time to get going in mid-season form. He is ready and willing to get in the game upon a moment's notice, and doubtless will be found playing in the double-header against the Nashville club at Ponce de Leon park Thursday afternoon.

MAKES FOURTH COLLEGE STAR.

Holland's advent into Southern league ball marks the entrance of the fourth college star into the Kavanaugh circuit. Derrill Pratt, Carlisle Smith and Carl Thompson being the other three. The three who now are in the game all have made good with a rush and it is putting it mildly in stating that Holland as a collegian was far superior to any one of those now making good. He was a better hitter and fielder than either Smith or Pratt, and yet Smith is starring at third base with Brooklyn, and Pratt is playing second for the St. Louis Browns.

While in college Holland starred at third base, but with the Cracker club he will doubtless be used at second, which position he can play in jam-up style. There is no local fan who in the least fears that the boy will make good and it is up to his friends to go to the park and encourage him. If you know the fans are back of you, better ball is sure to be the outcome.

Uncle of Frank, Near Death in Far-Off Hospital, Is Ignorant Of Charges Against His Nephew

Moses Frank Has Been Given No Inkling of Circumstances That Now Are About Frank Family—He Is Seriously Ill in German Hospital

Lying at the point of death in a hospital in far-off Germany is the uncle of Leo M. Frank, unknowing that for the last three months his favorite nephew has been imprisoned on the charge of murder and that today he is on trial for his life.

This is what an attorney for the defense says. He declares that uncle who regarded Leo Frank almost as his own son, has been too ill for many months to be given an inkling of the new circumstances about the Frank family and that he still believes his nephew is as he left him.

For a long time Moses Frank has been in bad health. In search of relief he went abroad, hoping that the treatment of European specialists would cure him. But Moses Frank grew worse instead of better, and on the day Mary Phagan was murdered he still was in Europe, while grave fears were entertained for his recovery.

They have been afraid to tell him about his nephew, apprehensive that the shock would cause the spark of life, already so feebly burning, to flicker out.

WILDCAT STILL NEAR ATLANTA IS RAIDED

A wild-cat whisky distillery operating in full blast twelve miles southwest of Atlanta was raided Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by U. S. Revenue Officer E. L. Bergstrom, accompanied by a posse of county police. George Burnett, a negro was the only person about the still, and officers allege, the negro is an adept at wild-catting, acknowledging to ten years' experience. The negro was the only person arrested.

The still was located in a valley between two hills on an abandoned farm, and practically no attempt had been made to conceal it, the immediate adjoining vicinity being practically deserted, say the officers. The capacity of the still is placed at 40 gallons of liquor and 600 gallons of beer was found in the still house.

MR. WILSON'S NOMINATION IS REJECTED BY SENATE

Prerogative of Senator to Name Postmaster Is Upheld by Unanimous Vote

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—President Wilson experienced his first genuine reverse in the United States senate yesterday, when his nomination of Paul A. Jones for postmaster at Coffeyville, Kan., was rejected by a unanimous vote.

Senator Thompson, the Democratic senator from Kansas, stated that the nomination had been made over his protest and that Jones was personally objectionable to him, whereupon all of his colleagues voted to reject the nomination.

The senate regarded the president's action as an invasion of the senatorial progressive and as a matter of "senatorial courtesy," sided with Senator Thompson in his protest.

ARE SEEKING TO AMEND GENERAL INSURANCE BILL

Home Companies Declare They Are Discriminated Against by Investment Law

Efforts are being made before the legislature to amend the general insurance law of Georgia so as to change certain features, which it is claimed, discriminate against and work to the detriment of Georgia home companies in the matter of making investments.

Two measures are before the assembly, one known as house bill No. 260, introduced by Representative Meador of Ocmulgee, and the other as senate bill No. 99, by Senator McNeil, of Macon. The two measures are similar. They change the present law so as to allow home companies to make investments, under statutory right, in stocks and other stable securities. At present while foreign companies are of course free to do this, Georgia companies are restricted. Georgia's life and fire companies are all interested in the proposed reform. These companies have done a great deal to create a market for bank stocks in Georgia.

Both of the bills, it is said, are modelled after the New York law, which is conceded to be the best in the union. The present Georgia law allows home companies to make investments only at the discretion of the insurance commissioner.

Georgia companies, it is declared, write 10 per cent of the premiums written in this state, while in other states home companies which are not hampered by the investment law write 65 per cent.

Train Is Stalled By Grass-Hoppers

(By Associated Press.)

DODGE CITY, July 30.—"Train No. 564 delayed forty minutes; stalled by grasshoppers."

This was the report received at the Rock Island depot here today. The train was coming out of Ford when it struck a deep cut where "hoppers" covered the rails. As the engine wheels crushed the insects the rails became so slippery that the drivers spun around and the train stopped.

The crew with shovels finally scooped the hoppers off the track and covered the rails with sand, then the train could proceed.

FIGHT TO MOVE CAPITOL IS STARTED ONCE MORE

Bibb County Delegation Secures 65 Additional Signatures for Removal Bill

The fight to remove the capitol of Georgia from Atlanta to Macon will again be waged in the Georgia legislature following the introduction Wednesday morning of a bill amending the constitution so that the change may be effected. The Bibb county delegation, Representatives Wimberly, Miller and Fowler, introduced the bill, which also was signed by sixty-five other members of the house.

The constitutional amendment will require a two-thirds vote of both the house and senate to be passed, and then must be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the people. It will be necessary, therefore, for 123 members of the house and thirty members of the senate to vote for the bill before it even can be considered by the people.

The capitol removal bill was considered by the legislature of 1912 and at that time it failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote. That the members from Bibb are thoroughly in earnest is indicated by their action in again presenting the bill, and the signatures of sixty-five members of the house demonstrates that a warm fight will be waged.

Agitation to remove the capitol to Macon began three years ago.

COMMISSION FAVORS INDETERMINATE SENTENCE

Chairman R. E. Davison Makes Appeal to Senate Penitentiary Committee

Chairman R. E. Davison, of the Georgia prison commission, went before the senate penitentiary committee Wednesday morning and announced that he and the members of his board were heartily in favor of the indeterminate sentence bill.

After hearing from Mr. Davison, the committee unanimously voted to report the measure favorably to the senate. It also has been reported favorably in the house, and the declaration that the prison commission favors it apparently means that it will receive no opposition from any source.

In appearing before the committee Mr. Davison said, speaking for himself and other members of his board:

"The prison commission is heartily in favor of the indeterminate sentence. We have had practical experience of the operation of such a law in the boys' reformatory, and it has worked well. We have found out that it makes better boys. It gives them the incentive to work for their release, and yet we are enabled to keep an eye on them and keep them under our supervision after they have been paroled. They know that their only chance to get out before serving their full term is to make good in deportment.

"If the convicts are given indeterminate sentences, I believe the same condition will prevail. Instead of increasing their evil tendencies and making them as sneaking and idle as they dare to be, they will have an incentive to behave themselves and do good steady work. They will be given the power to redeem themselves. We have discussed the measure thoroughly in the prison board and we are satisfied that with safeguards thrown around it as they are, it is a good and practical one."

NEW YORK CITIES EMULATE BEAVERS

Mr. Cape stated that the organization of which he is secretary favors the move and wishes to consider Atlanta's methods at the 1913 meeting in Binghampton.

TWO ELECTIONS DECIDED BY WOMEN IN ILLINOIS

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 30.—Women cast the deciding ballots in two elections in Illinois yesterday.

At Champaign, 120 women voted for the first time and carried a proposition to issue bonds for the purpose of motor fire apparatus. At Dixon, women cast one-fourth of the ballots, and as most of them were in favor of extending the waterworks franchise twenty years, they are considered responsible for the adoption of that proposition by a small majority.

Your Feet Torture You?

The feet are most scientifically organized, a network of nerves, with more sweat glands than any other equal surface of the body. They work almost incessantly, yet receive the least hygienic attention of any part of the body. Sweat exudations clog the pores, retard circulation and produce poisonous toxins which cause all foot misery.

Jacobs' Foot Relief is a powerful, antiseptic cleanser and healer. Dissolved in the foot bath, it draws out the poisonous matter and relieves suffering instantly, stops the burning and jumping sensations, stops swelling and gives genuine foot comfort. After a few nights' use, NO MORE FOOT TORTURE FOR YOU. Try it. 19c. by mail 20c.

In a telegram to The Journal Mr. Oldknow declares that he expects to interview the general on Mexico's reception of President Wilson's attitude toward the present government.

Mr. Oldknow has been in El Paso, where he has talked with many American newspaper men who are reporting the progress of the rebellion, and in Juarez, where Mexican officials have shown him courtesy. He expects to photograph many scenes in the strife center before returning home.

Mrs. Blanche Sweat, who was recently named in a divorce suit by her husband, E. R. Sweat, in a cross bill filed in the superior court Tuesday, denies the charge that she put powdered glass in his cup or in any other way attempted to take his life.

Mrs. Sweat alleges that her husband drinks heavily and that while drunk on the night of July 15, Mr. Sweat, through accident, dropped broken glass in his own cup, having broken the top of the sugar bowl.

That her husband's relatives are influencing him against her is another charge made by Mrs. Sweat; she also charges drunkenness and failure to support.

HABEAS CORPUS FAILING CONTEMPT STOPS DEPUTY

A habeas corpus order failed to frighten C. M. Mullis, a Dodge county deputy sheriff, when he came to Atlanta to arrest B. F. Mitchell, an Atlanta lumberman, Tuesday, but when he heard the ponderous wording of a contempt order he meekly handed over his prisoner and consented to remain in Atlanta. He declared that the contempt order was the most fearsome thing he had ever heard.

Mitchell secured the habeas corpus through Attorney W. M. Smith, after declaring that his arrest was caused by a mistake of identity. Mullis scorned it and declared his Dodge county warrant was much more potent. It was then that the contempt order was read him, and he succumbed without protest.

Fans and Ozonaters Keep the Air Cool At Trial of Frank

Whoever said that the court room at the Frank trial was the coolest place in town was not far wrong, although at that it is no ice box.

While at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon people on the streets were sweltering in a heat of 92 degrees in the shade, in the court room the temperature was not over 90 degrees.

There is a small thermometer on the wall just above Judge Roan's head, and not yet has the mercury in its little glass tube climbed over 90. Tuesday was the hottest day of the trial, and at 3 o'clock Tuesday, the hottest part of the day, the court room thermometer registered 90.

The equable temperature of the court room is due largely to the conveniences which have been installed. It was exactly a year ago Wednesday that on the fourth floor of the Thrower building spectators at the Grace trial were contending with a temperature in the court room of nearly 95 degrees, with no electric fans to relieve the intense heat.

The installation of the electric fans at the Frank trial and the placing of ozonaters at several points in the room has kept the air cure and fairly cool.

Now Are the Days Children Need Care

Summer Heat Dangerous to Little Ones Whose Bowels Are Neglected

A mother cannot do better for her children than to teach them from their earliest days regularity of the bowels. Regularity can be promoted without the child knowing it by watching its food and by so varying the food that all the elements of digestion are used, when nature will do the rest. The future health of the child depends upon this.

But try as you will there are times when the little one will become constipated and bilious. In hot weather immediate attention is necessary, as many serious diseases result from stuffed-up bowels. Don't give salts or cathartics or purgatives, as they are too harsh, but give a gentle, pleasant-tasting bowel stimulant like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been used by the children of this as well as a former generation, and thousands of families are proud to speak well of it, among whom we can mention Mrs. Louise Reynolds, 909 Jackson St., Lynchburg, Va., who is glad to recommend it, and Mr. Charles W. Allen, Manor, Tex., who writes that he often felt 100 year old, but feels younger now than his years.

Every druggist sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a large bottle. It will cure constipation and billousness in young or old, break up a cold and stop summer diarrhoea by ridding the bowels of the poisons and germs that cause the trouble. It is a grand family laxative, with valuable tonic properties.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

SENATE DEBATES OVER SCIENCE OF EUGENICS

Opponents Declare Bill Will Increase the "High Cost of Marriage"

The science of eugenics occupied the attention of the state senate for some time Wednesday morning when the bill introduced at the request of Dr. Embry of Villa Rica by Senator Hixon requiring a civil contract marriage was indefinitely postponed by vote of 19 to 18.

The measure provided tthat both parties to a marriage present a medical certificate of health signed by their family physicianns.

During the course of the discussion Senattor McNeil took occasion to poke a little fun at "the bachellor senators" who, he said, might be affected by the proposed law. Senator Richardson declared that whetther the senate passed the bill this session or not that it was bound to come some day.

One of the objectitons to the bill, as stated by its opponents, was that it would increase "the high cost of marriage" to a disastrous extent.

The senate passed Senator Tarver's probation bill and killed a bill of Senator McGregor's which provided that all new county creations should in the future be decided by those citizens in the affected countties. Senator McGregor gave nnotice of reconsideratttion.

SAYS REPUBLICANS ARE TRYING TO START PANIC

Senator Stone ,Democrat, Severely Criticises Opposition in Tariff Debate

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Shaking his fist at Republican senators, Senator Stone today charged during the tariff debate that every Republican speech he had heard had been delivered with the deliberat attempt to create a panic.

The Missouri senator spoke in reply to Senator McLean. He declared it appeared to him that the Republicans, through their speeches, were sending messages to the country with a design of creating fear and distrust.

Senator Clark, of Wyoming, in answer asserted that if any distrust were being engendered it was through statements by President Wilson, Secretary Redfield and Secretary MacAdoo.

Stone replied with a charge of a conspiracy among Republican senators to create public distrust.

"Name the senators," demanded Senator Clark.

"Every Republican I have heard speak," responded Senator Stone. He finally named the Wyoming senator himself.

"I have not delivered a speech," retorted Senator Clark.

Senator Stone read mercantile agency reports showing good business conditions. Senator Penrose declared that not a textile industry in Pennsylvania east of the Susquehanna river was running three days a week.

25 CENTS BRINGS A FORTUNE

The small sum of 25 cents was spent by a young English singer, who had suffered for years with indigestion, for a vegetable which was recommended as having wonderful digestive properties by a well-known French doctor. The singer prepared a sauce with this vegetable, which he added to his food adn also in the cooking. The name Waw-Waw (an obsolete South American Indian word for vegetable) was given to the sauce and soon a company was formed which gave to the singer a large sum for the recipe. Housewives in England have found it a necessity in the cooking and with soups, salads hot and cold meats and fish it gives a flavor unequaled.

He states that he was in quest of his automobile in a freight train in the yards in Atlanta when he climbed into a car laden with household goods and fell asleep in a rocking chair. When he awoke the train was in motion.

Skin Is Grafted from Man's Own Abdomen Onto His Right Hand

(By Associated Press.)

BALTIMORE, July 30.—Wearing the skin of his own abdomen upon his right hand, Dr. Frederick H. Baetjer, of Baltimore, an ex-Ray expert, is recovering from a remarkable operation at Johns Hopkins hospital.

To save his hand, four fingers of which were amputated a year ago after an infaction caused by X-ray, a piece of skin the shape of the maimed member was turned back from the abdomen, the injured hand bound tightly to the wound and the skin laid over it.

Then after a while the work of severing the ends of the skin attached to the body was begun. It is nearly finished now and it is believed today that Dr. Baetjer's hand will be sound and whole, save for the missing fingers.

SULZER CAMPAIGN FUND NOW SUBJECT OF PROBE

(By Associated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., July 30.—Governor Sulzer's campaign fund was the subject of investigation by the Frawley legislative committee today. After having placed in evidence a statement of the governor's campaign expenses as filed with the secretary of state, Eugene Lamb Richards, the committee's counsel, called Louis A. Sarecky, who handled the governor's campaign fund last fall.

Chairman Frawley directed Mr. Richards to seek a court order to place Sarecky under arrest for contempt of the legislature in refusing to answer questions.

The governor's sworn statement of his campaign expenditures showed receipts of $5,460 and disbursements of $7,724.

A check for $2,500 drawn to the order of Louis A. Sarecky by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., was put in evidence. Across the face of the check was written "Mr. Schiff's contribution toward William Sulzer's campaign expenses."

Counsel for the committee stated that this was in Jacob H. Schiff's handwriting and that this amount does not appear on the governor's campaign fund statement.

Sarecky said he is employed by the state hospital commission at a salary of $4,000 a year.

NEGRO'S NOMINATION MAY BE WITHDRAWN

Opposition to Patterson for Register of Treasury Has Become Great

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—So much opposition has developed in the last few days to the confirmation of A. E. Patterson, the Oklahoma negro, to be register of th ctreasury, that in the opinion of Senator Gore, the withdrawal of Patterson's name probably will take place soon.

Both Senator Gore and Patterson appeared at the White House today, but neither got to see the president because of the crowded condition of his engagement list. Senator Gore did, however, talk the appointment over with Secretary Tumulty, but Patterson had to content himself with an interview with a minor official.

Senator Gore said he still was in favor of the appointment of an Oklahoma full blood Indian to the place and felt sure such an appointment would be confirmed by the senate.

SENATE COMMITTEE HEARS FROM AMBASSADOR WILSON

He Advocates Restricted Recognition of Huerta Government—No Action Taen

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson advocated a restricted recognition of the Huerta government in Mexico at a secret conference with the senate foreign relations committee, but the senators took no action today. Details of his plan were not disulged at the time, but some of the Republican senators said the ambassador had made a favorable impression, not necessarily as to his plan, but as to his whole story of events in Mexico.

It was evident that senators had been keenly looking forward to firsthand information from the ambassador. Secretary Bryan was not present.

Ambassador Wilson began with a chronological recital of his personal observations of the stirring events in Mexico beginning at the abdication of Porfirio Diaz and spoke at length of the downfall of Madero and the rise of Huerta.

The committee was disposed to let the ambassador tell his story in his own way and for more than two hours he continued an almost unbroken narrative interrupted only occasionally by a question from some senator. Extraordinary injunctions of secrecy were placed on all senators in the conference but it was evident that the committee was listening attentively and that no disposition to cross-examine the ambassador developed at least during the first part of the conference.

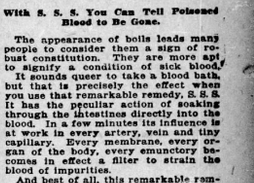
Boils Are a Bad Indication



With S. S. S. You Can Tell Poisoned Blood to Be Gone.

The appearance of boils leads many people to consider them a sign of robust constitution. They are more apt to signify a condition of sick blood. It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect when you use that remarkable remedy, S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities.

And best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. You can get S. S. S. at any drug store. It is a standard remedy, recognised everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. Be sure of any effort to sell you something claimed to be "just as good." If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to The Swift Specific Co., 185 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

A Bill for Human Rights.

The bill introduced in the House by Representative John Y. Smith, of Fulton, and Representative Samuel C. Olive, of Richmond, relative to the legal custody of minor children is so obviously just and well advised that it should be enacted without hesitation or delay. This measure is designed to relieve the existing law of its flagrant and really brutal discrimination against the natural rights of motherhood. It asks no more than every right-thinking man must concede to be fair and no less than any civilized State can afford to grant. The changes it would provide are not so far-reaching as others that have been suggested, but they are sufficient to free the present statute from its gross injustice; and their conservatism is distinctly in their favor.

Under the existing Georgia law, the right to the custody and control of minor children in case of a controversy between husband and wife is vested in the father alone. Unless he can be proved to be utterly unfit as a guardian, his prerogative in this respect is legally beyond question. Should he be proved unfit, the court may then consider the "best interests" of the child. But, in the opinion of jurists, nowhere in our laws are the rights of the mother, as such, in the first instance maintainable." Such a statute is contrary to conscience and common sense, contrary to the teachings of human instinct and experience and to those primal laws of nature in which the eternal rights of motherhood are graven.

If the State press in any wise reflects public opinion, there is a widespread and insistent popular demand for a change in this unrighteous statute forthwith, for, since the issue was broached comparatively a few days ago, representative newspapers throughout Georgia have been urging the Legislature to prompt remedial action. Indeed, there can be no difference of opinion as to the right and wrong of this question; the only thing to be considered is the best means to the end desired. The pending bill seems to meet the needs of the situation fairly and prudently. It is earnestly to be hoped that this bill will be reported with the least possible delay and passed as a measure of simple justice and humanity.

A Significant Recommendation.

It is gratifying to note that a sub-committee of the House committee on appropriations has recommended the allowance of thirty thousand dollars to establish a State institution for the guardianship and education of wayward girls. The committee's action is especially significant in that it represents the mature judgment of three Legislators, Messrs. Griffin, Green and Berry, who were detailed to inquire carefully into the merits of this cause and to determine the minimum amount of money required. In making their report they have given due regard to the lean condition of the State's treasury and like their fellow members of the appropriations committee have fully recognized the importance of farsighted economy. But they have also recognized the fact that the State can no longer afford to ignore a problem so vital and so tragic as that which the proposed institution is designed to solve.

Their recommendation is the outcome of deliberate thought. It should, therefore, be accepted by the Legislature as indicating the only just and advisable course to pursue. The question, as we have said before, is not whether Georgia can afford to establish this institution but whether she can afford not to establish it.

Argentina is to have an anti-trust law, showing how the rest of the world is taking to modern things.

The Flying Mars.

The French aviator, Massen, who is aiding the Mexican insurgents in their siege of Guaymas, has furnished interesting evidence of the utility of the aeroplane in warfare. Despite the guns of the federal forces beneath and around him, he circled over the city and the bay, dropped four bombs within a few feet of the gunboat, Tampico, and returned to his camp unscathed.

This is not an entirely new feat, for the Italians in Tripolitan campaigns and the Balkan allies in their attack on Adrianople used flying machines to signal advantage. It is doubtful, however, if a birdman ever before came within so close a range of the enemy's fire and escaped unharmed.

Georgia's Paramount Problem

The Legislature is now face to face with the State's paramount problem, that of fiscal reform. Until this issue is settled, and settled rightly, the treasury will remain impoverished, the school teach*ers will go unpaid, public institutions will be stinted*, urgent enterprises neglected and the interests of every county and every citizen will suffer. Until taxes are made just and uniform, the State's income will continue to fall woefully short of its necessities, the penalties of lax methods will pile higher and higher; and there will come a day in the not distant future when we shall be driven to a heavy tax increase, if we reject the wiser and more temperate remedy of tax equalization that is now available.

There is little or no dissent from this general principle, for, as everyone must recognize, the entire tendency of equalizing taxes will be toward reducing the average taxpayer's burden; when all men bear their rightful part of the government's expense, every man's portion will be lighter. But when it comes to reducing this principle to practical details, honest differences of opinion arise. There are those, for instance, who heartily favor county boards for tax equalization but who object to a State board for the same purpose.

This particular issue must be approached and determined as a condition not as theory; and thus regarded, a State board appears clearly indispensable to any effective plan of tax equalization. For the same reason that a board of equalizers is needed for each county, a similar board is needed for the State as a whole. The same objections that are urged against a State board might as logically be urged against the county board, for, when boiled to their essence, they amount simply to a contention that everybody should be allowed to pay as little tax as he pleases, leaving the State to be fed by the stray ravens of Providence.

Surely, if it is right and important that inequalities among individual taxpayers be adjusted, it is equally right and important that the larger inequalities among counties be adjusted. And if that is to be done, a State board that can work intelligently in conjunction with all the county boards must be provided. Let us not be disturbed by imagined ills of undue power in such a board. Its members would be dependent upon the common counsel of all the county boards. They would not dare deal otherwise than justly with any county in the commonwealth; and certainly, no county could ask more. A State board of this kind would be somewhat similar in its particular sphere of duty to the Supereme court in the field of law; and one might as well protest against the existence of the State's highest court as against the establishment of a State board of tax equalization.

Of this much we may at least be sure: without a State board, the plan of fiscal reform will be but fragmentary and ineffectual, Georgia's tax system will continue largely in its old ways, like a gypsy that dances here and there and then passes the tambourine for contributions. If the Legislature is to deal justly with the school teachers, justly with public institutions and enterprises and justly with the people themselves, it should adopt a measure of tax equalization that will really produce results.

Problems of Life and Death.

Everyone who appreciates the fundamental importance of public health affairs will applaud the action of the House committee on hygiene and sanitation in reporting favorably the bill *providing for the es*tablishment of a State bureau of vital statistics. This measure, it may be said without undue emphasis, is one of the most essential now before the Legislature. Upon its enactment depend Georgia's progress in campaigns against disease and also her recognition in the health reports of the federal government which are read as authoritative throughout the nation and the world.

Now that the bill has been approved by the committee, its passage in the Senate and the House should be effected without difficulty or delay. The appropriation for which it calls is really negligible in view of the far-reaching good it will accomplish. Five thousand dollars, we believe, is the amount asked for. Failure to provide this small sum for a purpose so tremendously important would be unbusinesslike and grieviously unjust to public interests. There are some needed improvements which the State may defer but we dare not put off a problem of human life and death.

It's easy for a sympathetic woman to make any man believe he loves her.

Editorials In Brief

In the case of Mrs. Young, who has resigned as superintendent of public schools in Chicago, we verify once more the fatality which attaches to genius, ability and experience in the control of our common schools. These qualities count for much in other walks of life, but in conflict with the egotism, bumptiousness and crookedness of the average political and racial school board they become negligible. There is no question of Mrs. Young's fitness for the place which she abandons. She retires because it is no longer possible for her to co-operate with commissioners holding their positions as political rewards or as testimonials to their eminence as representatives of some European race or nationality. Thus the fruits of fifty years of devoted public service are lost to the people as a result of the narrow influences that so often choke and dwarf our common schools.—New York World.

THE KEOKUK DAM

—The Biggest Water Power Plant

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The Father of Waters, the incomparable Mississippi, has been set to do the tasks of men. A dam has been thrown athwart its mighty flood, and its power turned into electricity is now running the street cars and the industrial motors of St. Louis, 100 miles away, while other cities soon will be connected also.

• • •

The Keokuk dam is the dominating feature of the biggest water plant ever constructed in this or any other country. It will take rank as an engineering feat but second to the Panama canal, and in the whole wide range of the hydro-electric world will stand without a peer.

• • •

The dam proper—the actual dam across the river from Keokuk in Iowa to Hamilton in Illinois—is almost a mile in length, but with the power house and sea wall and ice barrier it forms a solid monolith of concrete two and a half miles long.

• • •

The dam is built at the Des Moines rapids in the Mississippi, connecting Iowa and Illinois, but within hailing distance of Missouri. These rapids from the earliest days of steamboating have forped an obstruction to navigation that has given the government no little trouble. Nearly a century ago it was proposed to blast out a deep channel through the hard rock bottom of the rapids, and work was actually begun, only to be abandoned when the hopelessness of the task became apparent. Then a canal, narrow and with small locks, was built and continued in operation until this dam was built. As a part of the contract with the government, Congress stipulated when the dam was authorized that the company should construct and maintain a ship canal, with proper locks and a dry dock. This has been done, and the lock and dry dock will be operated with power developed at the dam, working a saving to the government of approximately $40,000 a year, not to speak of the actual improvement of the conditions of navigation.

• • •

When the work is all completed, including the transmission lines that will deliver the power to cities within a radius of 150 miles, the power plant will have cost approximately $20,000,000 and will be capable of developing over 200,000 horsepower. To dam the Mississippi was an undertaking requiring such great engineering skill and so much capital that twelve years ago, when the grant of authority was given by congress, no one insisted upon the government's retaining the power of regulating rates charged for power; such a retention as is now insisted upon by conservationists in all water power developments of navigable streams. But without going into the question of whether this unlimited grant was proper or not, from the government's viewpoint, it is apparent that the government will be greatly benefited by the direct aid to naviga*tion and the free operation* of much better locks than those that formerly cost $40,000 to operate and maintain.

• • •

The plant will deliver power not only to the city of Keokuk, but to St. Louis in Missouri, Quincy in Illinois, Burlington in Iowa, and many other cities in the power zone, a radius of 150 miles practically determining the limits. A contract for 60,000 horsepower annually has already been made with a light and power company in St. Louis, which is more than 100 miles south of the dam. Smaller towns also will benefit, but the policy of the company is to sell power at wholesale only, that is, it will make contracts with one concern in each city that will in turn sell the pow*er at retail. Independently owned* transmission lines will be built to the power plat, and the "juice" delivered to them in such quantities as may be desired.

• • •

The idea of harnessing the Mississippi river is not new, and many projects have been based on the idea of constructing a dam at this very point. But it is known now that a dam would have been impossible before the dawn of the Age of Concrete, and that even had it been possible it would not have been economically practicable until men had learned how to turn the energy of the water into electricity.

• • •

When Robert E. Lee was a lieutenant of engineers in the "old army" he made a report to the war department on the great amount of water power in the Des Moines rapids of the Mississippi, and anticipated that in the future some use would be made of it. But he was too good an engineer to think that the time had then come.

• • •

Joseph Smith was more of a dreamer and less of an engineer, and when he founded the Mormon church it was a part of his scheme of development at Nauvoo that these rapids should be dammed and made to run the machinery of his colony. One man actually did construct several wing dams into the rapids, to operate a mill, and although his first dam was carried away by ice, he built again and again. But all that was in the first half of the nineteenth century.

• • •

Then twentieth century saw a greater vision. The dreamer this time was an engineer who has proved by his works a right to stand high in the rank of his profession. His name is Hugh L. Cooper, and the Keokuk dam always will stand as a monument to his vision, his skill and his intrepid persistence. Congress granted the right to construct the dam in February, 1901, but Mr. Cooper was long in finding the money wherewith to begin the work. After years of indefatigable work, the capital was found, a Boston company undertaking the construction and the money coming largely from Canada, England, France, Germany and Belgium.

• • •

The preliminary work was begun in 1910 and in January of 1911, and the actual construction was begun with the building of a coffer dam in the frozen river. From that day on until now the work has not halted, and it is now practically complete.

• • •

Not only the canal, lock and dry dock being built for government use, but every other part of the entire construction from the beginning was under the careful and constant supervision of the chief of engineers of the war department. The plans were all submitted and were worked out in minute detail by army engineers before the necessary approval was obtained for proceeding with the work. Inspectors were present all the time to see that the army requirements were actually carried out in the construction.

• • •

Every part of the work was done by the power company, under the direction of Mr. Cooper, by administration, no part of it was done by contract.

• • •

Nearly all of the water power development of the country is to be found on and near the oceans—from the Canadian border down the Atlantic to Georgia with a spur into Tennessee and Alabama, and on the Pacific from Washington to California. The great central part of the country, the mighty valley, has had very little hydro-electric power until this, the greatest of all power plants, was constructed. It is remarkable, not only for damming the largest river of the continent, and for opening up a new zone for hydro-electric power, but it also is remarkable in an economic way for it is set down in the middle of the cheapest steam coal area in the country. It is this ability with steam under the most unfavorable economic conditions that affords the best demonstration of the essential economy of water-generated electric power.

"Future generations will think I am the president of the Ananias club," the shade of General Sherman moodily remarked. "What's the matter?" asked Napoleon. "Why, Carnegie has abolished war and the theologians have abolished hell," replied Sherman.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

There is a pretty place in Flushing
Not a very far away,
Where you can go an outing,
And spend the summer day.
The trees, and broad branches,
Cast there a pleasant scene,
Where flowers of the choicest,
Are mingled with the green.

The sweetest notes e'er warbled,
Of birds, that seemeth near,
Which lulls the heart, o songsters,
A charm they hold most dear,
Sweet buds and shady bowers,
The pond where lillies grow,
The rustic bridge, that leadeth
Down to the lake below.

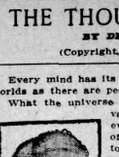
THE THOUGHT WORLD

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Every mind has its own world. There are as many worlds as there are people.

What the universe really is no one knows; it is a vain question, for nobody will ever find out; the only matter of interest is what the universe is to me.



So many men, so many worlds. The worlds of the degenerate, slouching along the slums; of a monk in his old-world monastery, where the days slip by with no marking incidents but recurring matins and vespers; of a busy lawyer; of a newspaper reporter; and of a house-wife, occupied with her children, her sewing, and her baking, are as so many different planets.

It is idle to speculate about "the end of the world," and whether it will be burnt next Thursday in a grand Day of Judgment or to be frozen to death a million years from now, or be knocked into pi some day by a loose comet; for when it's all over with me, when my consciousness ceases to record, it is all over with me, "the sum of things entire."

To be sure there is what William James called "a blooming confusion of consciousness," that is, there is a myriad-multitude of things in the outside world that crowd upon our attentin, but after all we make our world what we will "just as the architect is free to create his building" from all the material he finds.

The late Henri Poincare, who received the Bolyai prize from the Hungarian academy as the most eminent mathematician in the world, said:

"What is not thought is nought; since we can think only thoughts, and every word we use in talking about things stands for a thought, to assert there is anything else than thought is a senseless affirmation.

"Geologic history teaches us," he continues, "that life is only an episode between two eternities of death, and even in this episode thought endures but a moment. Thought is but a flash in the midst of a long night. But that flash is everything."

What a fool then am I to think that any outward event can overwhelm me!

What all men can do to me is nothing; it only matters what I do to myself.

To a soul that knows realities there can be no tragedy, no collapse, no failure. In that moment when the volcano spews upon him, the lightning sears him, or the rage of men burn him or crucify him, he inwardly laughs. They cannot reach his world.

My world is my secret. You cannot enter, you can only guess. I have my little hells and heavens, but they are not yours.

Quips and Quiddities

At a London dinner recently the conversation turned to the various methods of working employed by literary geniuses. Among the examples cited was that of a well known poet, who, it was said, was wont to arouse his wife about 4 o'clock in the morning and exclaim: "Maria, get up; I've thought of a good word!" Whereupon the poet's obedient helpmeet would crawl out of bed and make a note of the thought-of word.

About an hour later, as like as not, a new inspiration would seize the bard, whereupon he would again arouse his wife, saying: "Maria, Maria, get up! I've thought of a better word!"

The company in general listened to the story with admiration, but a merry-eyed American girl remarked: "Well, if he'd been my husband I should have replied: 'Alpheus, get up yourself; I've thought of a bad word!'"

It was the usual custom at Seaweed Farm for Mrs. Giles to wind up all the clocks each Saturday evening.

But last Saturday Mrs. Giles was on the sick list—nothing more serious than a slightly sprained ankle—and she found it impossible for her to move about the house. So Giles was bidden to undertake the performance of her duties.

Now, Giles was short and fat. The kitchen mantel shelf was high. In order, therefore, to reach the clock which stood upon it, Giles was forced to requisition the services of a chair.

Laboriously he mounted it, while Mrs. Giles watched the maneuvers in fear and trembling.

"John, John," she cried, "do be careful. That chair, you know, is none too strong. I'm sure it won't bear your weight."

"Ay, ay, my dear," he said, "it's quite all right; I'm only standing on one leg."

JUDGE PENDLETON SAYS GIVE CHILD TO MOTHER

He Indorses Principle of Bill Introduced in House by John Y. Smith

Judge J. T. Pendleton, of the Fulton county superior court, who has presided over more divorce trials than any other active judge in Atlanta, heartily indorses the principle of providing that the custody and control of minor children shall be given to the mother instead of the father in case of divorce or separation. Unless the mother is shown to be an unfit person, Judge Pendleton believes the mather should have the custody of young children.

Atlanta lawyers will this Wednesday afternoon appear before general judiciary committee No. 1, of the house, to urge a favorable report on such a bill, which was introduced by representative John Y. Smith, of Fulton county.

Representative Smith has requested every person interested in a favorable report on the bill to appear at the session.

Called "Other Woman" Doll, Alleges Wife

Mrs. Rena Gossett filed divorce proceedings against her husband, Robert A. Gossett, a city oil salesman, in superior court Wednesday morning. Mrs. Gossett instituted divorce proceedings on April 14, this year, but shortly after withdrew suit.

Mrs. Gossett alleges through her attorneys, Moore & Branch, that her husband frequently abused her, using ugly language, choked her and once drew a pistol on her threatening her life. When she returned to him in April after withdrawing suit, Mrs. Gossett alleges, Gossett promised to treat her better; but on the next day told her he only wanted to get her back so he could dispose of his property and that "then she could go."

Mrs. Gossett says her husband has continually corresponded with other women.

"Well, dear boy, it made me feel good to have you call me doll."

Another extract from one of "Flora's" letters Mrs. Gossett alleges, is: "I have often wondered to myself if I could live this life without you. I must say you are the idol of my heart on this earth."

Mr. and Mrs. Gossett were married on April 19, 1910. Mrs. Gossett is now living with her brother in Suwanee county, Florida. Mr. Gossett is with the Texas Oil company's city office.

ROME BANK CLERK IS THIRD HUSBAND

He Returns From Chattanooga With His Bride

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., July 30.—C. L. Payne, bookkeeper at the Exchange National bank, returned yesterday from a week-end journey to Chattanooga, bringing with him his bride, who was Mrs. Hallie Huddleston, of that city. Mr. Payne is a well known and popular resident of Rome, and has been a widower for the past two years.

This is his wife's third matrimonial venture. She was first Mrs. Huddleston, and then last February was married to a westerner, George C. Maher, who is said to have obtained from her $3,000 in cash and deserted her twelve hours after the marriage ceremony was performed. Mrs. Mahar sued for divorce, which a few weeks ago was granted with right to use her former name.

She and Mr. Payne were maried in Athens, Tenn., on July 4, and no one in Rome knew of the marriage until he returned here yesterday and introduced his bride to a number of his friends.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Moultrie Daily Observer Comes To the Support of Dr. Soule.

In an editorial entitled "Dr. Soule and His Critics," the Moultrie Daily Observer comes to the support of the president of the Georgia Agricultural college following the resolution of Representative Connor, of Spalding, introduced in the house last week, calling for an investigation into certain charges against the well known agriculturist.

The editorial says in part:

"The state of Georgia should hold up the hands of this man, and give him the funds that is necessary to build up agricultural schools, agricultural institutes, agricultural experiment stations and agricultural interests. In our opinion he is a safe leader. He may have faults—human beings generally have enough of them—but a man who is doing something big for the public good should have his faults winked at."

A resolution has been introduced in the senate by Senators Foster and Hixon, commending the work of Dr. Soule and deploring the fact that he should have been the object of criticism. The resolution states specifically that it is in retaliation of that which found its way into the house.

Joseph S. Reynolds Spoken of As Candidate for Congress.

Information from Augusta that the friends of Joseph S. Reynolds, former solicitor general of the Augusta circuit, are urging him to make the race for congress in the tenth district in the event that Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick declines to stand for re-election.

Mr. Reynolds is well known in Atlanta, where he has been a frequent visitor. He has traveled the state to a large extent and is especially well acquainted with the residents of the district in which he lives. He served as solicitor of the superior court of Augusta for twelve years, holding the office with distinction.

There is already one aspirant for congressional honors in the Tenth district, Judge Carl Vinson, having announced his intention of running. The fight may become three or even four-cornered, for it must be remembered that the names of John T. West, of Thompson, and Judge Henry C. Hammond, of Augusta, are on the tongues of the politicians as not improbable candidates.

Long, Hard Fight for Kindergartens Finally Lost in House Committee.

The unexpected certainly happened when the house committee on education Tuesday afternoon killed the kindergarten bill by a vote of 9 to 3. There were indeed few, if any, who had the slightest doubt but the measure would get through safely. It was a foregone conclusion that it would receive a favorable recommendation, thought it was equally as certain that a minority report of some two or three members would be filed against the bill.

The hearing on the bill began last week and since that time the committee has had little rest from its opponents and champions. A meeting was held early Tuesday morning and action finally deferred until the afternoon. The last session began at three o'clock and all arguments pro and con were in by five. Then for two hours the committee members discussed the bill in executive session before the vote was taken. The result was the biggest surprise that has been sprung at this session of the legislature.

Expected Fight on Tax Equalization by State Board Came With a Rush.

The expected fight on a state board of tax equalizers did not take long to develop on the floor of the house Tuesday morning when the Lipscomb bill came up for its final reading. There was comparatively easy sailing for the measure until section No. 18, relative to the power of the state board over the county boards, came. It was at this juncture that the big guns of the minority were unlimbered, nor had they ceased firing when the house adjourned for the day at 1 p. m.

The issue is purely one of state and county boards on one hand and the county boards alone on the other. All agree that some legislation looking toward tax equalization should be enacted, but the question is, who shall equalize. Shall it be the county boards alone, or shall it be these boards under the authority of the proposed state board of equalization?

The minority is attempting to fight the bill with a substitute introduced by Representative J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN NO. 67

Our Wayward Girl

"The child is not dead, but sleepeth"

---Mark 5:39

"My little daughter is at the point of death;

"I pray thee that thou come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be made whole and live."

With him, went Jesus.

On the way, a woman touched Him.

She was healed.

But others came saying to Jairus:

"Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Master any further?"

Jesus said:

"Fear not, only believe."

And in the house He asked:

"Why make you a tumult and weep? The child is not dead, but sleepeth."

"And they laughed Him to scorn."

But when He touched the girl and spoke, she rose and walked.

"She was twelve years old."

Worse than death may come to the daughters of men—even to yours and ours.

And some men and women would laugh in derision at the suggestion of their cure.

But not so with Christ, our Lord.

And, thank God, the centuries of His love have made the majority of mankind pitiful to the fallen: they no longer scorn and stone, if they only know.

Think of this!

Seventy-five girls—not hardened women of the street—but girls under sixteen, are in charge of one Georgia Court. Many more—some even younger—are in the State.

"They are morally dead," say some.

Not so, we answer in Christ's name.

You could save them, and with them, many others, from worse than death, had Georgia a reformatory for girls, like other states.

They are being lost for the want of this.

TO SAVE ONE MAN'S DAUGHTER FROM RUIN AND SHAME IS WORTH MORE THAN TO SAVE ALL OUR HOGS AND COWS FROM CHOLERA AND THE TICK.

And yet, Tuesday again the Appropriations Committee of the House recommended the appropriation of thousands of dollars for this and that,

WHILE CHAIRMAN CRAWFORD WHEATLEY of Sumter, moved that the Jones and Mills bill establishing a reformatory for girls, be laid on the table until next year.

This would mean the destruction of many a girl—their loss for the want of a place in our state to handle delinquent girls; these cannot be put in the chaingang or with the women of the prison farm.

John Y. Smith of Fulton, with C. F. Hollberg of Coweta, saved the measure by suggesting that it lay over until this coming Thursday.

Chairman Wheatley agreed to this.

It was done.

The Penitentiary Committee has recommended that this bill do pass.

The Prison Commission has said that Georgia today cannot take care of her wayward and delinquent girls.

Confidently, we believe that the Committee on Appropriations will recommend the passage of the bill, carrying the appropriation of $30,000.00 ($45,000.00 less than was asked for) to build the reformatory for girls.

The need is urgent—far more so than the sickness of our hogs.

You can and will find a way to provide for these girls, even as you did for our beasts that are sick.

Fairy Story Heroes in Stone

(Cincinnati Times-Star.)

BERLIN—The dedication of a "Fairyland Fountain" in a public park of Berlin was one of the municipality's contributions toward celebrating the quarto-centenial of the emperor's reign.

Berlin children are now reveling in a wonderful playground where they may see the heroes of their story books. The figures are placed in groups around two basins, the larger of which is there and so is the wolf. Red Riding Hood is there and so is the wolf. Here also is Jack-in-Luck and his pig. Puss-in-Boots, Cinderella and her slipper, Sleeping Beauty and all the rest of the old time favorites. The whole conception is a happy one, the poetry of child life is fittingly embodied in lasting stone amid beautiful surroundings, and it is agreed on all sides that much credit for final success of this beautiful idea is due Emperor William for his rejection of the first designs, which were too elaborate and symbolical.

All About a Cunner

Of all sad things of tongue or pen, the saddest of all is the cunner, that skinny, bony little fish that knows how to enter the jaws of hell and carry off its teeth. This measly vermin of the pathless deep is stronger for its size than the lion of the desert or the red ant of tradition. It is quicker than the wit of woman and more elusive than the shadow of a dream. It is bolder than a Bengal tiger and more justly entitled to kingship among the creatures of the sea than Job's leviathan or the great whale of Scandinavian mythology. Hats off to the cunner. Man is both fearfully and wonderfully made, but in the presence of this superfluny miracle of subaqueous evolution he stalds humble and aghast. The best way to get him is with a small hook about the size of a bent pin and a goose pimple full of unshelled clam.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowry's Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell were the guests of honor at the dinner given Tuesday evening at the Piedmont club by Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry.

The round table placed on the terrace, was adorned with many lovely flowers; in the center a plateau of rose-shaded gladioli was embedded in feathery fern, and at intervals were French baskets filled with lilies and pink roses, the handles of the baskets being caught with airy bows of blue tulle, while boutonnieres and ices in rainbow tints continued a lovely color scheme of French color.

Fans painted in pastel shades were favors for the ladies and the place cards were pretty souvenirs of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowry's guests included twenty friends.

The Evening Story — Pink Roses

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Wernet.)

It was all so new and amazing to Lavina Freer that her brain still whirled with the wonder of it. Yesterday she had been living, as it were, in the gray twilight of her old age, negative, emotionless, yes, even hopeless. Then she was thrust into the dazzling sunlight, where she was still blinking with unaccustmed eyes.

Lavina Freer sat at the window of the dingy little room she had occupied for four years. There was nothing in it that did not need improvement, from the fly-specked gas jet to the greasy ingrain carpet, where the feet of many boarders before hers had trod. There was little in the room that was her own. She had not gathered much from the weary years she had spent working and earning and there had been others than herself dependent upon her wages. Suddenly incompetency, hastened by old age, had seized her. She could work no more. The little she had saved must go now to keep her until death gave release.

Release, however, had come in quite another way—through a simple letter delivered by the postman. What it contained astonished her so much that she had to put on her things and limped to a lawyer to seek an explanation. The lawyer told her in direct language that she was the recipient of an annuity from some relatives she scarcely remembered, so generous that, for the rest of her life she could go clad in silk and ride in her own motor did she choose.

She had limped back to her room, her worn purse bulging with good yellow money and a bankbook in her hand, and had sat down and tried to realize it all. And after twenty-four hours she was still trying, with the result that things were beginning to clear a very little. Lavina Freer could have everything she wanted now, but she did not know what she wanted most. She was trying to find out.

"I've always been used to such poor things," she thought. "I guess poor things have got to be a habit with me. I seem to have kind of lost my taste for a good sight I used to feel I wanted. And, besides, I don't suppose I'd know enough to go into a store and buy right and left the way some folks do. I'd always be wondering what I could do without and what was cheapest as well as most serviceable. I need plenty of things, though. My goodness, I guess I do! It'll seem kind of heavenly hot days not to have to wear the same stuff dress I wear cold ones, the way I did last summer. And it was awfully hot here. I wish I knew some one who could advise me. I feel real kind of helpless and all upset."

At a sound she looked back into the street. A motor was coming down. Alone behind the chauffeur sat a girl wearing a big gray hat freighted with pink roses. As it disappeared the pink roses seemed to leave a cometlike trail behind them upon Lavina's imagination. She clasped her hands hard and something leaped to birth in her starved heart. "Pink roses!" she gasped.

Suddenly she knew what it was she wanted most in all the world.

At the street door a shabby girl who had just crossed the street was taking out her latchkey to let herself in. She was another of Mrs. Cassidy's boarders and she lived on the same floor with Lavina. As the girl's tired step sounded in the corridor Lavina pulled open her door. "Miss ——," she began, timidly.

"My name is Mary Kane," said the girl.

"Miss Mary Kane," pleaded Lavina, "won't you please come into my room a minute? I want to ask you something."

The girl smiled wearily. She was very young and delicate. She followed Lavina into the room and sank into a chair.

"I always worked sitting," Lavina said. "But work's work, I guess, whatever way you do it. How long have you been at it?" "Three years. Ever since father died. I was all he left and had to look after myself then."

"You're kind of young."

"I'm twenty-two. And I feel a hundred." The girl braced herself for a question. "What did you want to ask me?"

"Oh!" Lavina laughed. "I guess I was forgetting. I wanted to ask you if you think I'm too old to wear pink roses?"

The girl stared at her. "Pink roses!" she repeated vaguely. She was too tired even to smile again.

"I'll tell you," Lavina said, excitedly. "All my life I've hankered after something I never knew what till a minute ago. I wanted pink roses. The girl in the automobile——"

"I saw her," sighed Mary. "She buys wonderful things—lace and embroidery and jeweled net——"

"I don't know about them things," Lavina interrupted her. "But I do know about pink roses. There's been thousands and thousands of things I've hankered after all my life, but seems like they're all summed up now in one thing—pink roses."

"Yes, I have." The girl's lips quivered.

THE GIRL'S LIPS QUIVERED.

"And I was just wondering if I had to wait till I'm as old as you are before I could have my pink roses, too."

She spoke quietly, yet with heart-breaking pathos. Her tone and the expression of her face unsealed something in Lavina's heart—a secret fountain which had not flowed in years. It seemed to her that she was looking at herself as she had been at twenty-two. In all her good fortune she had only minded herself. The thought of another had not once entered into her plan. And here was the other. Moreover, she had been called in by Lavina herself. And her place in Lavina's scheme of things seemed to be growing larger each moment. It was as if the girl who had been Lavina appeared to her suddenly and said: "Here I am! You know all I suffered and craved and missed. You've got the means to change all this now. What are you going to do about it?"

The girl's words turned themselves over and over in Lavina's mind. She spoke at last. "If you did have to wait, what would you think about it?"

Lavina looked down at her old hands. She got up and went to the glass and looked in it at her old face. Then she came back to her chair and sat down. "Maybe," she said, with a gentleness she scarcely understood in herself, "and then, knowing it was too late for you to have pink roses yourself, you'd give them to somebody else."

"Yes, I would." The girl caught her breath. She looked at Lavina's humble figure, at the dingy room with its hall-mark of poverty visible everywhere, and smiled wanly. "But I guess," she added, "you and I will never have many pink roses to give away."

Lavina began to flush with almost young eagerness. "Suppose," she said rapidly, "suppose I had? Suppose I had heaps and heaps of pink roses to give away? There'd be other things left for me—lots of things. I can imagine some of the things that'd be left, a flat with soft rugs and nice, shiny furniture and plants in the window. And chicken any day in the week you chose. And warm clotes in summer. And plenty of clothes in in summer. And plenty of good, clean novels to read. And somebody that you could do for who'd maybe love you if you deserved it, somebody you could give all your pink roses to and who'd be young enough to wear them." Her eyes had filled with tears. She was rocking back and forth in her excitement as her ideas gathered and the future cleared like rolly water before her eyes. "Mary Kane, I ask you, will you take the pink roses if I'm willing to give 'em to you."

Lavina rose and went to the bureau and pulled out the purse and the papers and brought them back to show her. She saw the girl's amazement grow into conviction as she understood. Color and light flowed in her face, the color of joy, the light of gratitude.

"But why should you do all this for me?" she faltered. "Maybe you'll find somebody else more worthy—maybe——" she broke down.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

After Peter Rabbit has saved little Miss Fuzzytail from Black Pussy, the cat who belonged way down to Farmer Brown's house and had no business hunting in the Old Pasture, he went with her as near to her home as she would let him. She said that it wasn't necessary that he should go a single step, but Peter insisted that she needed him to see that no more harm came to her. Miss Fuzzytail laughed at that, for she felt quite able to take care of herself. It had been just stupid carelessness on her part that had given Black Pussy the chance to catch her, she said, and she was very sure that she never would be so careless again. What she didn't tell Peter was that she had been so busy peeping at him and admiring him that she had quite forgotten to watch out for danger for herself.

Finally she said that he could go part way with her, but when they were almost within sight of the bull-briar castle of her father, old Jed Thumper, the big gray Rabbit who thought he owned the Old Pasture, she made Peter turn back. You see she was afraid of what old Jed Thumper might do to Peter and—well, the truth is she was afraid of what he might do to her if he should find out that she had made friends with Peter. So Peter was forced to go back, but he took with him a half promise that she would meet him the next night up near his sunning-bank in the far corner of the Old Pasture.

After that there were many pleasant days for Peter Rabbit. Some days little Miss Fuzzytail would meet him and sometimes she would shyly hide from him, but somehow, somewhere, he managed to see her every day, and so all the time in Peter's heart was a little song:

My heart is joyful as can be,

And then one day old Jed Thumper found out all about how his daughter, little Miss Fuzzytail, and Peter Rabbit had become such good friends. Old Jed Thumper went into a terrible rage. He chewed and chewed with nothing in his mouth that is, nothing but his temper, the way an angry Rabbit will. He vowed and declared that he would drive Peter Rabbit from the Old Pasture if he never ate another mouthful.

My, my, my, those were bad days for Peter Rabbit! Yes, sir, those certainly were bad days! Old Jed Thumper had found out how little Miss Fuzzytail had been fooling him by making him think that Peter was in parts of the Old Pasture quite the opposite direction from where he really was. Worse still, he found Peter's favorite sunning-bank in the far corner of the Old Pasture, and would hide near it and try to catch Peter every time Peter tried to get a few minutes' rest there. He did something worse than that. One day he saw fierce Mr. Goshawk hunting. He let Mr. Goshawk almost catch him and then ducked under a bramble bush. Then he showed himself again and once more escaped in the same way. So he led fierce Mr. Goshawk to a point where Mr. Goshawk could look down and see Peter Rabbit stretched out on his sunning-bank trying to get a little rest. Right away Mr. Goshawk forgot all about old Jed Thumper and sailed up in the sky from where he could swoop down on Peter, while old Jed Thumper, chuckling to himself wickedly, hid where he could watch what would happen.

That certainly would have been the last of Peter Rabbit if it hadn't been for Tommy Tit the Chickadee. Tommy saw Mr. Goshawk and just in time warned Peter, and so Mr. Goshawk got only his claws full of soft earth for his pains, while old Jed Thumper once more chewed on nothing in rage and disappointment. Dear me, dear me, those certainly were dreadful days for Peter Rabbit and little Miss Fuzzytail. You see all the time little Miss Fuzzytail was terribly worried for fear Peter would be caught.

AFTERNOON FROCK

There is no decrease in the fashion for the very low neck and the upstanding frill to outline this decolletage. The afternoon frock pictured is made of white Chinese silk. The pleated tunic and the folded bodice are of crepe de chine. The sash is of jade-green ribbon and jade-green ribbon confines the tulle frills at the elbows. The white straw hat is faced with green silk and banded with white tulle. An American Beauty Rose on the hat adds a touch of brilliance to the costume.

The Kind of Room a Man Likes

In New York there is one man who has a room that exactly suits him. His wife wanted a house and got it, upon condition that he could be exactly as he pleased with his own room. He did as he pleased. The walls are in two-toned, bright red stripes. A thick rug of solid red covers the entire floor. A big couch is covered with plain red. The furniture is selected from the family discard. It consists of a big oak table, a commodious black walnut bureau, a chiffonier that does not match the bureau, but has unusually large drawers, a white iron bed, a white rapid washstand and an assortment of chairs, shabby, unbeautiful, but without exception comfortable—leathery and substantial and masculine, so that one can drop down almost anywhere and have the making of a smoke handy, a bookcase full of detective stories, sea yarns and history, pictures of girls and horses and boats and dogs, and his wife and Daniel Webster. No curtains. No bric-a-brac.

"A bully room!" say most of the husband's man friends, retreating to it as speedily as possible, from the chaste severity of the Adams drawing room. It all depends upon the point of view.

AMERICAN FASHIONS

By Lillian Young.

Often a simply made costume can be raised from mediocrity to a plane distinctly more interesting by the use of some simply applied hand embroidering. It need not be anything complicated or elaborate, in fact the good effect is apt to be lost by the use of such. Applied motifs of the stencil figure variety can be effectively worked into a border or used indiscriminately on various portions of the dress. This embroidering is always considerably "padded" and worked in large loose stitches.

A simple enough single motif worked in Copenhagen blue is repeated at intervals and used for a border on the tunic skirt of the white sponge dress here sketched. The arrangement is repeated on the triangular bibs above the belt on either side of the front, while the single motif is used to trim each cuff, and, if desired, the sash ends.

The dress itself has a long-sleeved blouse opening in front to show a shirred yoke of white net, trimmed wit a straight row of tiny bone buttons. There is a square turn-down collar of self material and a ruche at the neck and sleeve-ends of plaited white batiste. The blouse is belted in across the back with a square strip of the sponge buttoned down on either side over the black satin sash.

Shakespeare to the Farmer

(Weekly Memphis Commercial-Appeal.)

Shakespeare, through the mouth of Polonius, in "Hamlet," gave some good advice in the words, "Neither a borrower nor a lender be, for the loan oft loseth itself and friend." Borrowing, to which is usually added neglect, stirs up involuntarily a sense of injustice and dulls the edge of friendship. We are all so constituted that we usually take better care of our own possessions than we do of others. Borrowing involves the principle of using another man's capital for our own gain.

In some instances borrowing is excusable, and these cases all men recognize. But it is also known that with some people borrowing becomes a habit, and a bad habit it is, too. We have known some people to borrow neighbor's articles to save the wear and tear of their own possessions. In such cases the neighbor usually has to borrow them back. Such a course spoils the friendship of both.

When the busy season is at hand it is well to lay in a supply of the articles that will be needed, such things a nails, bolts, wrenches, extra castings, plow points and all things that are needed in emergencies. Make it a point not to borrow anything that is not absolutely needed. Don't borrow anything that you are not absolutely willing to return promptly. Make things ready and be prepared so that it will not be necessary to send the small boy over to the neighbor to borrow something that your pride will not let you buy after. Don't get the borrowing habit. Pay up your back debts and set the neighbors a good example this summer. If they don't see the point, quote Shakespeare to them in order to save using it.

Farmers Must Fight Flies

The housefly is not a city problem alone, but one which gives trouble in every farm home. The farmer has as much need to fight against it as the city dweller, with the sole difference that the fly on the farm does not have so much opportunity to pick up disease germs as in the city. But it has opportunity enough, and a very large part of the sickness on the farm is due to the fly and its co-worker, the mosquito, of which the first is by far the more to be feared. The best breeding place is in piles of manure. Wherever that exists flies will be plentiful. All forms of decaying animal or vegetable matter are also breeding places. Cleanliness around the house and stable prevents breeding, as does also the treatment of manure piles with disinfectants.

The next preventive is screening the doors and windows. If the flies cannot get into the house and contaminate the food they can do no damage. Screening also keeps out the mosquitoes whose bite conveys malaria. A few dollars spent for screens is a far better investment than the doctor's bills, patent medicines and, possibly a plot in the cemetery. And how much neater and more comfortable the home is without the fly and mosquito in it. It is time farmers gave as much attention to this matter as city dwelers.

An Australian "Fiylipino Peril"

(Sydney (Australia) Bulletin.)

If the awful new president that Uncle Sam has elected carries out his purpose of granting "independence" to the Philippines, there will simply certainly be big trouble close enough to Australia's door to give this country a feeling as if cold fingers were walking down its back. The talky, fussy Filipino will be recognized as master of the country. He already has a parliament, a big hat with a feather in it, and thinks himself innumerable pumpkins. The ignorant, but inflated Mohammedan Moro will proceed to cut the throat of this educated but superficial person. The handful of white people will refuse to be ruled by the brown folk, and will take the situation in both hands, and start a republic, and then put the country up to auction among those European powers that seem able to supply a capable garrison. The Japanese will interfere in the interests of peace and in his general capacity as boss of the Northern Pacific. And then there will be breakages—as many breakages as that the crash of falling crockery will be heard from China to Peru.

The Treatment of Sunburn

(Rural New Yorker.)

Probably few of the minor ills of life can make one much more miserable than a bad case of sunburn, which seems rather a joke to everyone except the chief victim.

Dr. Rucker, of the government public health service, says that blondes suffer more than brunettes from the effect of heat, because the pigment in a brunette skin transforms to some degree short rapid electric heat waves; thus the idea that fair people feel the heat more has a basis in fact. Dr. Rucker says blondes should wear blue or orange underwear, to protect the skin, while white outer garments add coolness by reflecting the heat rays.

As a rule a painful case of sunburn is relieved by applications of some quickly evaporating substance, rose water being especially comforting, but a very bad case may induce sufficient fever to call for a doctor's care. The blisters resulting from bad sunburn need care, too, for sometimes a sort of poisoning results that affects the whole system. Antiseptic washes and a simple salve should induce prompt healing in most cases, however.

Buttermilk a Great Summer Drink

(London Mail.)

The health value of buttermilk, which has been put on the list of light refreshments at the House of Commons at the request of two members, was described by a London physician who is an authority on diet.

"Buttermilk is a beverage which deserves every encouragement, especially as a hot weather drink. Most of the fatty elements are removed in the process of making butter, but a number of other valuable nutritive qualities are left. These become even more valuable when the buttermilk is taken with other foods. Thus buttermilk contains a certain amount of casein which will enable one to make a most satisfying meal off a glass of buttermilk plus a very small amount of meat and potatoes.

"It also has an excess of lactic bacteria, the foes of nearly all the harmful germs in our digestive systems, which give it a slightly laxative property. It has a decided acid flavor which makes it a thirst quencher. As the fats have been extracted during the butter making process it has practically no body heating properties. The casein is valuable because it supplies the repair elements needed to replace the wear and tear of muscular tissue."

What Is Plymouth Rock?

(Boston Globe.)

Plymouth Rock is a large rock near the waterside at Plymouth, on which the Pilgrims are said to have stepped when they first landed December 21, 1620. Tradition divides the honor of being the first to land between John Alden and Mary Chilltern.

In 1774 Plymouth Rock was raised from its bed near the waterside, but was broken in the operation. In the following year the upper part was removed to the public square, where it remained until 1834, when it was again removed and placed in front of Pilgrim Hall. There it rested until 1880, when it was taken and reunited with the other portion. It is now surmounted with a handsome granite canopy and visitors may stand upon the rock. In the attic of the canopy are placed the bones of several of the colonists who died during the first year of settlement.

A Warm Epitaph Suggested for Ingersoll

(Clark's "Eminent Lawyers.")

After his lecture on Robert Burns, on one occasion, the colonel was approached by a Scotchman, who said: "Colonel, the title of your lectures should be 'The Epitaph of a Tombstone.'" "How is that?" said the orator. "Robert Burns," replied the Scot.

When God First Made Man

When God at first made man,
Having a glass of blessings standing by,
"Let us," said He, "pour on him all we can;
Contract into a span."

So strength first made a way,
Then beauty flowed, then wisdom, pleasure;
When almost all was out, God made a stay;
Perceiving that alone of all His treasure
Rest in the bottom lay.

"For if I should," said He,
"Bestow this jewel on my creature,
He would adore my gift, instead of Me,
And rest in nature, not the God of nature—
So both should losers be.

But keep them with repining restlessness—
Let him be rich and weary; that, at least,
If goodness lead him not, yet weariness
May toss him to my breast."

Inez Milholland, Rich Suffragette, Weds Rich Dutchman

Miss Inez Milholland, who has been one of the most conspicuous suffragettes in the United States, and who has pretended to scorn the tyrant Man, has gone off and married a rich Dutchman, Eugene Boissevain. Of course a groundwork of mystery which would have done any press agent proud was laid for the wedding. The fair suffragette has had the faculty of getting her name and pictures into the newspapers.

In a cable from London it was gravely announced that Miss Milholland had been wooed by Lord Curzon, former viceroy of India, who had married one of the Leiters; Sidney Smith, a New York clubman; John Fox, Jr., author and recently divorced husband of Fritzi Scheff, and Lindon Bates, former assemblyman from New York City in the state legislature. So far as Mr. Bates is concerned the report may be true, for his name was linked with hers two or three years ago.

The Author of "The Rubaiyat"

(Tit-Bits.)

Edward Fitzgerald was utterly careless of his fame. His life was as an old man, and not one in a million of his fellow countrymen regarded him as a poet, even if they had heard his name mentioned as an old chum of Alfred Tennyson. Yet he wrote "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayam" long years before his death. He kept it "chucking about," apparently not thinking it worth publishing?, and when he did print a few copies nobody took any notice of it. Today "Omar" is one of the most famous poems in the world.

A Rebuke for Beau Brummel

(De Morel's "Beau Brummell.")

One day when he was talking with Lady Hester Stanhope, chance obliged him to give some explanations of his general conduct. They were in Bond street, and the Beau was leaning upon the door of the lady's carriage, whispering to her the secret of a marvelous perfume, when a young colonel passed whose name was then in all mouths.

Teeth Knocked Out

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., July 30.—Dr. William C. Wright, son of Prof. and Mrs. W. C. Dr. Wright's injuries were of such a nature that he was advised to go immediately to Atlanta for expert dental attention. His many friends here and elsewhere in the state will join in hoping for his early recovery, without any permanent injuries and continued membership in the "Smile club" during his future professional career.

Double Header Wednesday, Then Crackers Come to Home Field

Eight Losses On Road Trip; Win But Three

Team Has Been Going Badly and Must Take a Brace or Drop to a Point in Second Division

It appears as if it is an impossibility to get the Crackers pitchers and hitters working in harmony. First the pitchers will be off and the batters hitting like fiends, and then again the pitching will be good and the batters will slump. But right now both pitching and batting have slumped and there isn't a chance for many wins until they again pick up.

Since leaving home the Crackers have played eleven games and in but three of these have wins been chalked up. This is a poor showing for a road trip for even a second division club, much less one that is up in the race fighting for first place. It is very discouraging to the Cracker fans who had visions of a pennant prior to the road trip which is now about to be completed.

The only hope for the Crackers to come through the present road trip with a creditable record is to take the remaining two games from the Mobile Gulls, and such a performance is extremely doubtful .A two-play win, however, would give the team five wins and eight defeats, which isn't half bad, though not as good as was expected and as should have been turned out.

On the stay in New Orleans the Crackers allowed the tail-end Pels outfit to win two, which evened up the series. Then Memphis took two out of three. Montgomery took two in a row and Mobile has taken the only two games played. And this is not the kind of work that pleases fandom.

Gadsden Takes Game By One-Sided Score

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 30.—Gadsden took the second game from the locals. The score was 10 to 2. Bannister, of LaGrange, was hit freely from the start through the fifth when, when he was relieved by "Red" Moseley, a left-handed twirler, who made his initial appearance with the locals.

Moseley held them down to three hits and no runs. Four home runs were marked up for the visitors. Time of game, 1 hour and 40 minutes. Umpire, White.

ROHE MAKING GOOD LEADER

NEWNAN, Ga., July 30.—Newnan has won every series since George Rohe became manager and is now one game behind Gadsden for first place. When Rohe took the management of this team it was in last place and its chance seemed hopeless to win the pennant. Rohe is liked by all of the players and they work for him harder than they have for any other manager. Newnan has the hardest hitting team in the league and stands very close to the top in fielding and the prospects are that Rohe will be able to send some to the big leagues next season.

Nap Rucker made his debut in Newnan and so did Elliot Dent and the locals are going to furnish the big leagues with such material as this next year. Griffin, Newnan's first baseman, stands a big showing in going to the big league next season as he is a very fast fielder and a hard hitter.

Alperman Is Now Improved

MOBILE, Ala., July 30.—Captain Whitey Alperman, of the Crackers, who has been confined to the hospital since Monday morning, at which time he underwent successfully an operation for appendicitis, is improving rapidly. In fact, so much improved was his condition that several visitors have been allowed to see him, among whom was Manager Smith.

Although Alperman is improving wonderfully under the careful attention of the physicians it will be three weeks before he can leave the infirmary.

Final formal consent of all managers in the league has been received to suspend Alperman for the year upon full salary, consent of President Kavanaugh having already been received.

Journal Team In Big Game

The Atlanta Journal will meet the Stewart D. Jones team at Ponce de Leon park Wednesday afternoon at 3:30. The game is one of the best on the amateur calendar for the week. Both of these teams are looking for the lead in the Grocer's league and something is bound to break Wednesday.

The Journal team has struck its stride and is in the race until the end. The line-up has been strengthened by the addition of Stallings, who will play first. Johnson who pitched such sensational ball against Kampers last week, will be on the mound against Jones Wednesday and the heavy sluggers will more than likely be mowed down by his benders.

The Journal's main strength lies in the heavy hitters with such men as Laird, Simmons, Stallings, Carroll and Black to do the stick work, and the opposing pitcher should worry.

This game will be a deciding point in the league's race, and will be well worth the 10 cents admission charged. For The Journal the line-up will be as follows: Hull, 2b.; Mansell, cf.; Black, 3b.; Simmons, c.; Pavlosehy, lf.; Stallings, 1b.; Black, rf.; Carroll, ss.; Johnson, p.

Cross Gets Decision

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 30.—Leach Cross, of New York, got the decision last night over Matty Baldwin, of Boston, at the end of twenty unexciting rounds at the Vernon arena. It was Cross' fight all the distance. In the last four rounds Baldwin grilled slightly.

ADOPTED SQUAT THROW OWING TO A LAME ARM

Jimmy Archer Once Threw Like Other Catchers, But a Burned Arm Caused Him to Change Style Years Ago

Without further ado, we will swing into something that everybody seems to be distinctly interested in—the squat throw and how it is accomplished. This is a great pet of mine, as it should be, because it was this trick that got me better known all over America than anything else I ever did, writes Jimmy Archer.

To begin with let me say that this trick of the wing from a squatted position is not only a mighty difficult thing to accomplish, but it is, as well, a hard thing to describe in such a way as to bring about a full and reasonable understanding of it.

That it is a great trick there is little doubt, because I have had, and am having at the present time, a lot of imitators, but so far I have yet to see a catcher who can do well with it.

His balance must be perfect, because the ball comes to him with great force usually, and he must retain equilibrium or else the crash of the ball against the mitt is liable to ruin just what he wants to do—be in position to let the ball go without rising to full standing position.

INJURY CAUSES SQUAT THROW.

First of all let me explain that I had to invent or devise this method of throwing with a snap because my throwing arm was badly crippled by being scalded from waist to shoulder, an accident that threw up the cords of the elbow in such a way that after I recovered I found that I could not straighten my arm.

This hampered my making what is called a free throw with a full swing of the arm, and then, after a lot of practice, I devised this snap of the wrist that is called the squat throw. I used to have a sidearm throw that I considered pretty good, but had to discontinue that after my arm was crippled.

As I grasp the ball to throw I snap the forearm forward sharply with all of the power possible centered in the wrist. Then, just before the ball leaves my fingers, I bring both of my crouched legs into a sort of short swing toward my left side.

This force of the legs is brought right up through the body, which also swings slightly, into my arms, and then is centered in the wrist as the ball slips away from my hands.

The best way I can illustrate is to say that this throw is made and the force behind it developed in much the same manner that a boxer stiffens his entire frame just as a shot blow lands on his opponent.

There is no "give" to the boxer's arm, shoulder or body, the whole being rigid. Hence the object of attack must give.

FORCE DEVELOPS THROW.

It's the same with this throw, as far as getting force behind the ball is concerned. When the knack of getting this force from the heels up is learned, there is nothing more to be known of the squat throw.

I've been asked many times what advantage I think this throw has over the old method of bearing to second on steals. I figure that the catcher has a five-step advantage over the runner with it. I'll show you in detail.

From the time the pitcher winds up and lets the pitch go to the time the catcher gets the ball the base runner has a three-step lead on you. He gains two more while the catcher is rising, steadily, and drawing his arm back to make the throw.

Two more strides he gains on you while you are taking a step forward to throw, and then—well, he usually has your throw beaten easily.

The squat throw saves the time that it takes to arise, and my method of throwing with a snap of the legs and wrist saves the time that it takes the ordinary catcher to finish up getting the ball off to his baseman.

PITCHER'S POSITION AIDS.

In aiming at second base I throw the ball directly at the top of my pitcher's head. I never try to throw at the base itself, excepting in this way.

If the pitcher will remain still without stepping to either side after he has delivered the ball he always presents the target I want.

The pitcher, of course knows what I want and does it. Hence you have the entire accuracy with the help of your battery mate.

TEAM HOME THURSDAY

One more day of battle with the Gulls and then the Crackers, sore in body and spirit will blow homeward to rest under their own vine and fig tree for five games.

There is, however, no rest for the weary, for within these three short days of home stay, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Volunteers must be met and battled with, not thre times, as the number of days would indicate, but five times, there being two double bills on the slate.

Neither will the Crackers have such a rest as they deserve after their road trip. The Nashville series is all that will be played here. After that the team goes off again, and makes a jaunt through the northern circuit, for a short road trip.

After this trip, however, the Crackers return home for a long stay of twenty-four days, playing every team in the league except the Vols. In their present condition every day spent at home is a great help to the Crackers on account of the crippled and battered condition of the team, and if they lose on Wednesday afternoon to Mobile, their winning streak should nevertheless be broken when they return to their own ball lot.

Red Smith batted .333 in three times at bat. He also had a busy day in the field, accepting three difficult chances, participating in one double play.

For the sixth time in as many years John Rietz, aged 60 years, has entered the Illinois Athletic club's annual marathon swim to be held in Chicago off August 16, as part of the water carnival to be held there.

TWO GAMES WITH GULLS WEDNESDAY

MOBILE, Ala., July 30.—Today will mark the last contest between Mobile and Atlanta, and the last game of Atlanta's present road trip. The weather permitting, the Gulls will be pulled off to take the place of the postponed game which was knocked in the head by the rain Tuesday afternoon.

So far the Gulls have managed to have the Crackers' goat completely tied out behind their band wagon, but Billy Smith says that his cripples can come back with the punch and are going to be right there this afternoon.

Both the members of the team have that peculiar frame of mind which is brought about by a good omen. They look for the new member of Wallop Smith's family is a very good omen and will serve to break the jinx. If it makes them feel in this way it may do the work, for there is nothing like the proper psychological angle toward the old national pastime.

According to the regular run of affairs Pitcher Clarke will probably work the first game for the visitors, while Price will work for the second. Dunn and Chapman will divide the catching. If, however, Smith decides to use his new Pitcher Love, the lonely southpaw will be sent in to handle the second contest.

For the home team Campbell and Schirm will be the battery in the first fray, while Hogg, who got away against the Crackers in the first game, will be sent back in to work the second contest.

The games will be called at 2:18 o'clock, the weather permitting, but as the weather is very threatening the clubs will be lucky to get away with one game.

BENTON NEAR DEATH IN MOTOR COLLISION

Ex-Southern League Hurler Collided With Street Car While Riding Motorcycle, Not Exepcted to Live

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 30.—"Rube" Benton, star pitcher of the Cincinnati National league baseball club, was probably fatally injured in a motorcycle accident in Walnut Hills, a section of this city, early this morning.

At the Cincinnati hospital it was said he had sustained a fractured jaw, concussion of the brain, multiple bruises and internal injuries. It is thought he will die.

The pitcher had not regained consciousness up to 8 o'clock this morning.

Benton was on his way home when the accident occurred. Some witnesses said he was going at high speed, that he lost control of the motorcycle and ran into the car. Others said the car ran into Benton and that the motorman was at fault. The collision was headon and Benton was hurled to the street with terrific force.

Surprises in Tennis Meet

CHICAGO, July 30.—John C. Neely, of the Wanderers' club, one of the favorites in the western tennis tournament, was defeated Tuesday by Robert Shelton, of Texas, one of the doubles champions of the south. Neely won the first set 6-4 and defaulted on the third. Shelton took the second 6-3.

W. T. Hayes defeated A. L. Green, western intercollegiate champion, 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Gwendolin Rees, of Minneapolis, centarl western champion, won an easy victory over Miss Elizabeth Moore, of Chicago, 6-1, 6-1, in the women's singles. Miss Rees and Miss Carrie Neely, of Chicago, are considered leading candidates for the women's western title, now held by Mrs. Thomas Bundy, formerly May Sutton, of San Francisco. Miss Neely won from Miss Elizabeth Bruce, 6-2, 6-1.

Neither Mrs. Bundy nor Maurice McLoughlin, western champion in the men's singles, who is now in England, will be on hand to defend their titles, so the winners in the tournament finals will assume the championships by default.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

The Montgomery team has lost to the Lookouts, thus dropping within one full game of the Mobile bunch, who were forced to lie idle on Tuesday with the Crack rs. Birmingham won again, thus going a game and a half above the Crackers.

The Giants copped two from St. Louis, while Philadelphia won one from Pittsburg. Al Demaree and Fromme had the St. Louisians completely at their mercy and the Giants climbed another notch in their race for the pennant.

RAIN KILLED THIRD GAME

MOBILE, Ala., July 30.—For some time before the Tuesday game scheduled between the Crackers and the Gulls the rain poured and the clouds lowered over the grounds, and soaked the diamond to such an extent that it appeared that no game could be played. After the usual thirty minutes' wait all hope of a game was finally renounced, and the contest was postponed until Wednesday.

The weather permitting, a double bill will be played at that time, as this is the Crackers' last appearance in Mobile, and the local team, of course wants the game played on home grounds if possible.

Motor Events Again Booked; Rain is Likely

Team Race Will Be Attempted Wednesday Evening—Events Booked for Tuesday Night to Be Run Off

Jack Prince will endeavor to slip one over on old J. P. Wednesday night and stage his big motorcycle racing events at the big motordrome. The program which was postponed from Tuesday night will be run off.

Tuesday morning the weather looked most ideal for a most pleasant evening when it suddenly clouded up late in the afternoon and just at nightfall showers came and the races were off. Wednesday it is just the opposite. Early in the morning it looked very much like rain and Manager Prince is pulling for it to clear up in the afternoon so the races can be staged.

The big event carded for Wednesday evening is the thirty-minute team races in which all ten riders will participate. The racers will likely go forty miles in grinding around the track for thirty minutes, provided no spills or torn machines deter them. Each rider is to have a partner and they will alternate on the track. No one rider can stay on the track more than twenty minutes in succession, which is sure to necessitate changes.

Besides the big team race there is to be a big motordrome event in which all riders will participate. Five riders will be in each of the two qualifying heats with the five fastest in the final. Freddie Luther and Harry Glenn are booked to stage a special match race to settle an argument as to which is the faster.

Here is the complete program:

FIRST EVENT.

SECOND EVENT.

First heat of a match race between Glenn and Luther. (Race to be two best heats in three.) Distance, two miles.

THIRD EVENT.

Second heat of Motodrome sweepstakes. (First and second men in each heat and third man in fastest heat to start.)

SIXTH EVENT.

SEVENTH EVENT.

Half-hour team race. Teams—McNeil and Graves, Schwartz and Lockner, Shields and Richards, Luther and Lewis, Renel and Glenn. (No rider can remain on track over twenty consecutive minutes.)

Golfers Reasy For Big Meet

Just two more days of practice and the Capital City club golf stars will get away in the big tournament for the president's trophy. The qualifying round is to be played Saturday with a handsome trophy offered the winner of the tournament and cups for the winner in each of the flights.

The golfing game has taken quite a hold at the Capital City Country club, and each afternoon the course is well filled. J. McKenzie, the club professional, has kept the links in excellent condition that it is now a pleasure to play over it. The putting greens have been in good shape for some weeks past, while the fairways are now getting in condition and makes the course one of the fastest nine-hole links in these parts.

It is expected that at least four flights will fill in the tournament for the president's cup. Net scores will count in the qualifying round with the club handicaps applying in each of the future rounds. The tournament is to be concluded in two weeks.

Interest in Big Tennis Game

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 30.—The brilliant victory of Maurice McLoughlin and the American tennis team in capturing the Davis trophy has brought local interest in the game to fever heat and it is believed that the city tournament which opens August 9, will be the most successful ever held.

Entries have already been indicated from most of the southern cities and the courts of the Golf and Country clubs were thrown open this week to all who have formally entered.

Work upon the courts has been steady for the past few weeks and they are in good condition for play. Alex Guerry, of Sewanee, will referee.

No Records Broken, But Good Time Made

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 30.—Although attended by no record-breaking performances, Tuesday's Grand Circuit races produced excellent time, the ten heats run off averaging 2:03 1-5. Two events developed keen contests.

The Grand Rapids railway purse for 2:20 trotters fell to Uncle Biff in straight heats. In the third heat it appeared to almost every one in the stand that Eulabelle had nosed out the favorite and the judges' announcement that Uncle Biff had won provoked a storm of protests. The best heat was 2:07 1-2, a new mark for the winner. The 2:24 trot was a great three-cornered race between Mundy C, Dublin Lady and Bingaron, and developed another trotter when Mundy C after dropping the first heat to Dublin Lady, stepped the second in 2:09 1-2. Murphy managed to land Mundy C in the two subsequent heats.

Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association races at Lexington from October 6 to 15, will be for purses aggregating $65,000. The feature will be the $21,000 stake in the three-year-old futurity which will net the winner $14,000, the largest amount ever offered, it is reported.

HELD FOR 39 ROUNDS BY BOXER WHO HAD BROKEN BOTH HANDS

Al Kaufman Tells of His Greatest Fight, Which Was With Jim Barry—Towel Was Finally Used

The fighters' story club met in my room to swap stories of experience, and just before the session was opened in walked Al Kaufmann of San Francisco.

"Here's the victim," I said. "Come on, Al, tell us about your toughest scrap. We're holding an experience meeting. "And the ex-white hope told of his fight with Jim Barry.

BY AL KAUFMANN.

Whenever a boxer goes 39 rounds to win under the present rules, his opponent is some tough guy, and that's why I pick my scrap with Jimmy Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, as the hardest one I ever took part in.

Barry and I fought at Los Angeles, December 30, 1903. The fight ended in the thirty-ninth round, when Barry's manager, Murphy, tossed a towel into the ring to prevent more punishment.

I wasn't punished so severely in this fight as I was by Philadelphia Jack O'Brien a few years before, when I was green. What that veteran handed me I'll never forget, but my fight with Barry was a different proposition. It was a battle of endurance, and several times I felt on the edge of Queer Street.

Not wishing to detract from Barry's showing, I'll state that it was reported he broke both hands punching me and certainly he had me stepping until the thirty-seventh round, when I registered the only knockdown of the fight.

The bell saved Barry, but he failed to recuperate during the intermission and was an easy target in the thirty-eighth. How he weathered the sorm and returned in the thirty-ninth I've never been able to understand. He shower wonderful gameness and refused to take the count.

Billy Delaney, the great fight handler, seconded me in this fight and showed more than once a worried expression, especially during the early rounds, when Barry displayed great ability to duck, making me miss like a boob.

The fight started tamely. Several times Barry rushed, ducking my short swings and hooks. I was somewhat discouraged over my failure to hit him, but Delaney kept telling me to stay with him until I landed.

Finally I resorted to the kidney punch and straightened him up. Blood trickled from my mouth and nose in the eighth, when I stopped five straight smashes with my nose.

Thanks to Delaney's coaching, I began to pile up points in the fifteenth. From then to the twentieth it was a series of clinches and short arm work, both working away at the belt, to weaken each other.

In the thirty-fourth I popped him a hard swing flush to Barry's mouth, bringing blood in great quantities. That punch rocked Barry to his heels and started him on the down grade.

In the thirty-seventh I knocked him down and he came up staggering. As it apparently realizing the hopelessness of continuing, Murphy threw a towel into the ring in the thirty-ninth, when it seemed that Barry might suffer lasting injuries by continuing.

Villa Rica Winner Over Lois Club, 2-0

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., July 29.—The Lois baseball team lost a hard luck game here Saturday by the score of 2-0. The feature of the game was the battery work of both teams. Duncan played good ball on third base. F. Johnson was the batting star for Lois, getting two hits out of four times at bat.

Lois has some promising players for some good class D league and they most likely will get a tryout next season.

New Grad Treasurer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 30.—The Harvard athletic committee announced today that Frederick W. Moore, '93, had been selected to succeed William F. Garcellon, as graduate treasurer of athletics and director and supervisor of university sports.

Boehling, of the Senators, got a late start, but is certainly bowling 'em over at a great rate these days! Or don't you pronounce it that way?

PROUGH TO GET TRIAL WITH MAJORS IN 1914

Chicago Americans Hold Option on Hurler, and it Will Certainly Be Exercised—Prough Now Tops Hurlers

With Comiskey holding an option on "Wee Willie" Prough, the Chicago White Sox will probably land the wonderful twirler. When the Chicago club placed Mayer on the Birmingham club the mogul of the White Sox exacted an option on the Birmingham team. As Prough is leading the league, his third trip to the majors is assured.

Although Prough would bring at least $6,000 were he placed on an open market, the Barons will get but $2,500 for his services. In view of the fact that Chicago holds an option on the club, the other major league teams have not bid for Prough.

But four times during the season has the elongated right-hander been beaten by the best talent of the league. The defeats administered came from the unexpected forces. The Pelicans downed Prough twice. His present mate—"Rube" Evans—downed him on May 4, 4 to 1. Brenton was the next victor, with a 3-2 ten innings' triumph on May 30. Sommers scored the third on June 3, with a 6 to 3 victory, while "Pug" Cavet scored the fourth, winning 2 to 1.

Unheralded, Prough captured his sixth straight victory when the Turtles were beaten Friday. The winning sequence was begun June 9, when Memphis was beaten 7-3. Hogg yielded before Bill's masterful twirling on the Fourth of July, 3-1, while the third straight came when Case was defeated 10-1 on July 7. Relieving Boyd and tieing Harrell prevented the growth of the record, but Prough defeated Bagby on July 15 for the fourth straight.

Cavet had previously beaten him after he had captured four straight but Campbell, pitching for Mobile, permitted him to take the fifth when Birmingham won 5-3. After a sore arm prevented him from taking his regular turn, Bill trounced the Turtles, 4-2, and registered his sixth straight.

With the crippled Pelicans as adversaries, "Wee Willie" has a splendid opportunity to increase the sequence. He has won sixteen games and is yet to experience the usual slump. Prough is young but still a finished twirler and is sure to go higher. Bill's a fine fellow, personally, too.—Birmingham Exchange.

Little Journeys to the Diamond
The Secretary

The secretary is the joker of the baseball deck. He is played wild.

At home the secretary buzzes about like a hungry tramp at a free lunch. He hasn't time (and doesn't take it) to be civil to anyone, although he may smile sarcastically when he takes a minute off to write a pass for the official scorer's country relatives who have a habit of coming to town on the holidays when the management has a chance to sell all the seats.

But on the road the secretary acts like a regular fellow. He loosens up amazingly, takes a cue in the Kelly game, balls the waiter in real ball player fashion, and is a consistent sitter in the great train exercise of "Two-ferme" or "I'llplaythese."

However, it isn't all joy for the secretary when the club is on the travel. His temper bristles like a wire hair brush when the Pullman company kicks in with a twelve-section sleeper after promising a sixteen-section car. The players yelp at the secretary, the secretary yelps at the Pullman company, and life on that trip is one long, miserable screech for the Pullman porter.

Most secretaries consider themselves out of place. They ought to be down there on the bench running the ball club. Certainly they could win more games than the big soak who didn't know enough to pull the pitcher until the game was tossed off.

The secretary usually is architectured may be a hardy specimen and thrive after the shape of yon Lean and Hungry Cassius, although occasionally he unto fatness on the scanty American fare doled out to ball clubs and accessories.

Some day when the baseball millenium is about to break a chap will come along and show the baseball secretaries how to become the John Heydler of popularity. He will tend to his own business and let the manager run the ball club. He will write to each sport editor several days before the club is due in that particular jumping off place (every town in the league but the home city is a jumping off place, you know) and outline the probable batteries for the series, giving a definite idea as to when Mike Regan, the brilliant young left hinger and star of the season, will appear on the dome.

When some secretary wises up to a plan of action based on these lines he may expect to face his map, two columns up to four, in the daily papers each time he comes to town.

Or perhaps he will be called the business manager.

When this time comes, ah, well, the day will be at hand when C. Webb Murphy will be popular in Chicago, when Garry Herrmann and George Tebeau will be fast pals, and Boston win a pennant in the National league.

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

JULY 31

People born on this date are kind, generous, sympathetic and magnetic. They would give up all their own comforts and even their lives to heal the sick. Their great love and tenderness make them loved by all and gives them a charm and personality which is felt wherever they go.

The weakness of men and women of this birthdate is that they are apt to be too quickly prejudiced against others and are apt to jump at conclusions too quickly. They easily acquire wealth and are most successful in large business deals. They are quick tempered, passionate and impatient, and this is their grave fault.

Learning the sublime lesson of self control, there is no height which they cannot reach.

The coming week it is advisable for all trades to be reading The Journal Want Ads for new and larger opportunities. Hotel keepers will advertise to their advantage through The Journal Want Ads for extra help.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For charge ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Cattle Industry of Georgia

TO my way of thinking, the most neglected thing and also the most important thing connected with the welfare of this state is the cattle industry of Georgia. Every state in the union when its farmers pay attention to this line of work are prosperous and making money, and then we have so many great advantages in this state for the successful growing of all classes of cattle we are overlooking this most important and most profitable industry. Cattle are so easily raised and probably will stand more neglect and thrive with less attention in greater numbers than anything I know of, and if the people of this state would convert the thousands of acres of waste land that now lies into pastures and provide a variety of grasses to sustain these cattle we would not only have thousands of dollars income from the cattle but would have the fertilizer to enrich our farms. It is a by-product that is worth untold value to every man who is fortunate enough to have a sufficient quantity of this valuable material to use in producing great crops.

With the long seasons that we have in Georgia ensilage can easily be grown at $1.50 per ton, and with an abundance of ensilage, plenty Bermuda pastures and a world of alfalfa and peavine hay, together with shredded corn, thousands of head of cattle could be produced in this state that are now being shipped here. I saw the past week an object lesson that has more thoroughly convinced me than ever the great possibilities ahead of the people in this country if they would only take advantage of it. During the past week I saw a farmer exchange a splendid little milk cow giving four gallons of milk per day to a city man for a dry cow and the city man paid a difference of $50 between the transaction. The farmer sold the dry cow at the stock yards for $52.65. This cow practically netted the farmer $102.65. Just think how easy it would be every year for a large number of farmers to make such transactions. If five or ten such animals were produced on only a few of the farms in this state every year and converted into cash during the summer months when they are always high it would keep thousands of dollars in this state that are now going away from us and there is no reason on earth why every farmer should not have five or ten cows to market every year similar to the one that I saw sold last week. What a prosperous state of affairs our country would be in if we could see such exist.

This same thing applies to hogs and sheep and it is a pity but what the cotton farmers could once get in a habit of raising these things and having them to offer each year. There is probably no state in the Union better suited for such or that the conditions are so near natural for the production of cattle, hogs and sheep as the natural conditions of Georgia present in this line. If men with capital would make it a rule to keep a limited number of cattle on their farms every year, take care of them and raise the feed for them this state of affairs would exist, but it is a hard matter to get them to take any interest in such things and nothing but cotton seems to attract the attention of the average farmer.

The annual state fairs that were once conducted in Atlanta did more to keep up the interest and breeding of live stock in Georgia than anything that has ever happened. Since these fairs have been abandoned the interest has wained, and we see but few people now breeding livestock that were interested ten or fifteen years ago. If it had not appear at that time to be very much noticed and one who has kept track of the effect it had on the state can readily see what has been lost by doing away with these fairs. Thousands and thousands of dollars were kept in Georgia and changed hands among the farmers and helped a large mass of people when these fairs were conducted annually, but since they have been abandoned I can readily see that a big difference exists now.

Yours very truly,

POULTRY FEED

POULTRY FEED

WHAT TO FEED IN ORDER TO SECURE EGGS

If you want eggs during the latter part of the summer and early fall you must feed your hens on a thoroughly balanced ration, in the shape of a dry mash. We claim Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed to be the best dry mash on the market; from the fact that it is composed of the highest grade of raw material that can possibly be secured. This feed has no filler or adulterated, cheap stuff, whatever, but contains every ingredient of which the egg itself is composed; and if you will only think a moment, you will agree with me that if you put into the hen's craw the ingredients of which the egg is made, you have a right to expect her digestive organs to convert these ingredients into the egg and to secure a greater yield of eggs from your hens than if you fed her otherwise.

Ask any successful poultryman what he thinks of Aunt Patsy, and give us a trial order.

Very truly,
AUNT PATSY POULTRY FEED CO.

Ask Your Dealer for Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, the Egg Producer.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 29, 1913.

Aunt Patsy Poultry Feed Co., Memphis, Tenn.

Gentlemen: Until a few months ago I lived in Atlanta, Ga., and while there I fed my hens and baby chicks Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, and had no trouble in raising my young chickens or getting plenty of eggs from my hens. Since moving to Indianapolis I have not been able to get the Aunt Patsy Feed, and have had lots of trouble with my baby chicks, and my hens have not laid well at all; so I am writing to know if you won't ship me 500 pounds of Aunt Patsy at the best price you can delivered. If so, I will appreciate it very much.

I've JUST GOT TO HAVE AUNT PATSY or sell my hens, and I don't want to do that. So please let me know if I can expect the feed and oblige.

Respectfully, MRS. S. M. SMITH.

City Attorney Rules That Portable Iron or Steel Buildings May Be Erected Inside the Fire Limits Even With Sidewalks and Joining Other Buildings–Ansley Park Sale–Y. M. C. A. Transfer Formally Closed–Volume of Transfers

The city attorney on Tuesday made a ruling on certain provisions of the building code. He ruled that steel or iron portable buildings, which are generally used for repair shops, offices, or garages, may be placed even with the sidewalk and joining other buildings in any part of the fire limits.

Ed R. Hayes, the building inspector, had previously held that these portable buildings within the fire limits should be placed ten feet back from the sidewalk and not nearer any other building than ten feet.

The ruling came about through the installation of several portable buildings of this style by Andrew Gust on a lot at Edgewood avenue and Equitable place which he had leased from Joel Hurt. Mr. Hayes informed Mr. Gust that these buildings would have to be set back from the sidewalk.

An appeal was made to the superintendent of construction, and the city attorney was called in.

The code now allows buildings of bricks, Portland cement concrete, steel and iron in the first limits, but Mr. Hayes contended that the spirit of the ordinance was against portable buildings in the fire limits, as they tended to mar the sightly appearance of the business section.

The city attorney, however, held that as long as the buildings were of iron or steel they could be erected on the sidewalk line.

Mr. Hayes said Wednesday that there would have to be additional legislation on this phase of building.

ANSLEY PARK SALE.

John D. Babbage has sold for Gibson Rose to an out-of-town buyer a vacant lot on the south side of Argyle drive, between Piedmont avenue and Maddox drive, 90x175, for $3,150.

Y. M. C. A. TRANSFER.

The formal transfer of the Young Men's Christian association building, at the southeast corner of Pryor street and Auburn avenue, to the Chamber of Commerce Realty company, took place Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, when a deed conveying the property was signed by Captain J. W. English, chairman, and J. K. Ottley, secretary of the board of trustees of the Young Men's Christian association.

At the same time was consummated a transaction by which a loan of $100,000 was placed upon the property by the New York Life Insurance company. Of this amount $60,000 was paid Wednesday and the remainder will be paid by the insurance company when improvements on the building are completed about the middle of December.

The building was purchased from the Young Men's Christian association a year ago for the sum of $160,000 and final ayment was made Wednesday with two checks aggregating $65,673.71, made payable to Robert J. Lowry, treasurer of the Young Men's Christian association and delivered to Marion Jackson, president.

Those present at the formal transfer were: Marion Jackson, president; Captain J. W. English, chairman of the board of trustees; J. K. Ottley, secretary of the board of trustees, and J. P. Jackson, general secretary, representing the Y. M. C. A.; W. G. Cooper, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and Shepard Bryan, representing the New York Life Insurance company.

This brings to a close the first and most important feature of Wilmer L. Moore's program announced when he began his term as president of the Atlanta chamber of commerce.

The improvement of the building has already begun and will probably be completed in December.

Just now a committee on manufacturers' exhibits is actively engaged upon a plan to organize an association of manufacturers who will place a permanent exhibit in four floors of the building.

LISTINGS RENOVATED.

Agents just now are taking advantage of seasonable quietness to go through their listings of property, bring them up to date, and prepare an assortment of offerings so as to be ready for the fall season.

Owners likewise are going through a like process of their holdings and getting them in readiness for a brisk market later.

A great deal of property is listed and filed away for future reference, and the relisting process from time to time unearths an attractive list of offerings.

VOLUME OF TRANSFERS.

Both the Fulton and DeKalb county transfers continue to hold up well and every day a fair volume of new transactions go on record.

RENEWED BULL SUPPORT CAUSED RISE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 10 Points Off for July; Others 1 to 4 Points Up

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 30.—With no rain in Texas at night and a dry map this morning cotton opened steady at an advance of 1 to 3 points, after easing off a little under scattered profit-taking, but soon developed fairly large buying here and Liverpool sold. Private reports from Texas told stress on dry, hot weather and said cotton was shedding badly, while from the eastern belt outlined favorable.

After 11 o'clock the market broke under heavy July selling, which dropped 16 points, and pressure on new crops, which declined 4 to 9 points under last night. Offerings were due to large July notices than expected and to considerations for investment in all parts of the western belt except east Texas.

On such conditions that Oklahoma and western Texas probably have showers tonight or tomorrow and that rain might later reach eastern Texas, the early afternoon market was easy at 6 to 7 points net loss on new crops. On opening orders around 2 o'clock prices rallied back almost to yesterday's level.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 30.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 1 point on the most active months. Cables were better than due and dry weather was again reported in the western half of the belt. These two factors gave the market a steady tone in the early trading, but did not lead to much buying. After the call prices were 2 points over yesterday's close, but the forecast of cloudy and unsettled weather for the western belt tonight and moderate selling under which prices fell to a level 2 points under yesterday's last quotations.

The report of the first bale of new cotton at Brunswick, Georgia, created a bullish feature early in the market displayed rather pronounced weakness after the middle of the morning. The first bale of new cotton to be received restricted their operations because of the nearness of the cotton belt report. Private accounts told of good rains in Texas which were not included in official weather reports and they appeared to lessen sentiment. At noon the trading months were 7 to 8 points under the close of yesterday.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The market was bought early on stiffer cables and private reports of some deterioration in the western belt but became easy later on selling by Wall street and uptown crowd. There has been considerable trading in July today but we look for trouble to special interests, as the trading in this spring was in small lots and scattered. There is also a large short interest on the bulge in the belt and this is causing a hesitancy on the part of those who would be able to sell on the last now. However, a narrow market is looked for until after the government report is out of the way.—Anderson.

Saving and Investing.

YOUR MONEY.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

For more than ten years the stocks and bonds of the Union Pacific railroad have been regarded as investments for the conservative man. Any one interested in making up a list of purchases to bring a fair income and to be held for possible improvement in price.

In all that time the financial position of the road must have been accurately known to a great many hundreds of investors in the west who do not find out about security before putting their money into it.

Yet one by-product of the recent Lamar-Lauterbach inquiry by a committee of the United States senate was the publication, in the course of Lamar's testimony, of Lamar's charge that a forgery had been committed on the books of the Union Pacific which resulted in the inflation of the road's apparent assets of more than $82,000,000.

It was brought out that this charge, so unbelievable that Lamar could not get any newspaper to print it, was to be made the basis of an attack on the securities of the Union Pacific by a certain group of "bear" raiders.

This same group of pessimists was planning also to stimulate opposition to every plan proposed by the officials of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific to effect an equable distribution of the securities held by the Union Pacific. Opposition was to be stirred up in congress, and in the delay and confusion which resulted these "bears" were to get their opportunity to force down the price of the road's securities.

It is all characteristic of that section of Wall street which feeds on rumors, which exaggerates suggestions, and which gives life to the Dave Lamars of the financial world.

But the average investor can only ignore such gossip—it would drive him crazy to attempt to trace it or to verify it.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP.

The Times-Democrat says: The cotton market presents a small anomaly, a sort of forerunner of what may be expected if the national congress shall strike the machinery of distribution a death blow with its legislative acts. America believes that the crop will be large, that the world can afford to pay current prices, and that, under normal conditions of supply and distribution, all the cotton harvested in 1913-14 will pass into the consumers' hands at a splendid profit to the farmer. But America fears the Clarke stamp tax and is in a receptive mood for new options. On the other hand, continental Europe believes that America will try out the unoccupied realms of many people by making the Clarke stamp tax on futures a law, and Europe knows full well that the decline in the American market will mean the resurrection of consumers' confidence in values at less material cost.

The weather map shows fair weather in Texas and Oklahoma; cloudy in the remainder of the belt, with rain in the western states; general rains east of Mississippi, Alabama and western Georgia. Rain light over the north Memphis district. Indications are for generally fair weather in the western belt with rain perhaps cloudy in the Galveston coast district, cloudy and showery in the eastern and central states, that is.

MURDERED AND ROBBED NEAR N. G. ENCAMPMENT

(By Associated Press.)

SEAGIRT, N. J., July 30.—George K. Harris, a stenographer, fifty years old, who was found dead from three bullet wounds in the head, near the summer home of Governor Fielder at the state encampment reservation yesterday, had been gambling with the militiamen encamped there and was probably murdered for the money he won, according to the theory entertained by the police. Harris was regarded as a "man of mystery" at the encampment. Little was known of him except that he came from Danbury, Conn., about a month ago. Advices from Danbury say that he is not known there.

The police are still confident that the small caliber revolver which Harris clutched in his hand, had not been used by himself, the wounds being of a nature, it was said, that could not have been self-inflicted. He was evidently murdered while walking from the state camp to his boarding house at Spring Lake, a distance of about two miles. The lawn near the spot where the man's body was found, 100 feet from the "little white house" where President Wilson resided last summer before his election and where Governor Fielder now resides, had been trampled by many feet. The theory is that Harris gave a hard fight to his assailants, who first shot only to wound him by injuring his knee, but then being hard pressed shot him through the head.

An empty wallet was found twenty feet from the tree, where his body was lying. The police located a man who said he saw Harris Monday, and that he then had a wallet stuffed with bills of large denomination. As a witness the police are seeking an unnamed woman, with whom Harris was seen to be walking in the neighborhood of the state encampment on the night of the tragedy.

LIEUT. COL. GAILLARD SUFFERS COLLAPSE AGAIN

Chief of Central Division of Canal May Have to Retire Permanently

WASHINGTON, July 30—War department officials were surprised to hear through the press reports from Panama that Lieutenant Colonel David du B. Gaillard, chief of the central division of the canal, had suffered another breakdown. When in the United States recently, on leave of absence the officer showed no sign of illness. Recent reports on the work in the famous Culebra cut, which is directly in his charge, have been most encouraging.

Should Gaillard's retirement from the canal work be permanent it would leave as the support of Colonel Goethals, no less than four efficient army and navy officers, namely, Colonels Sibert, Gorgas, Hodges and Judson and Civil Engineer Roseman.

Therefore, it is believed that rather than make a new appointment at this stage of the canal work, Colonel Gaillard's function will be distributed among the officers already in the zone.

WILL PROVIDE OFFICES FOR NEW CONGRESSMEN

WASHINGTON, July 30—Preparations practically have been completed for the enlargement of the house office building to accommodate the new members in the enlarged house. Sixty-three new rooms will be added, fifty-one of which will be built on the top of the present structure. The remainder will be fashioned on the other floors through a rearrangement of the present offices. The work will cost close to a quarter of a million dollars, which was provided for in the deficiency appropriation bill last March.

The working plans for the changes in the capitol now are practically finished. The additional story will be built so that it will not be visible from the street, but will occupy the space overlooking the central court.

Senator J. H. Lewis Wants Fathers' Day A National Event

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, the former Georgian, has come to the conclusion that the "old man" of the family has not received proper recognition from a grateful country, although the nation has honored the other members of the American household. As a result he announced his intention to introduce a bill setting aside July 29 as "Fathers' day." Already there is a "Mothers' day" and a "Children's day."

"Why shouldn't we do something for the 'old man'?" demanded the senator with virtuous indignation. "He pays the bills and on cold winter mornings lights the fires.

"In summer time they make him do the work of a horse mowing the lawn in the blazing sun. His lot altogether is not exactly a happy one. He deserves recognition."

Senator Lewis intends to introduce a bill at this session, but will not press it for consideration until the regular session beginning in December. If prompt action is not taken on it then, he threatens to make a speech.

for a church reception," said Mrs. Hanan. "Leaving on my bureau several pieces of jewelry for my maid to put away, which she did. When I left the house the maid went to a spring not far from the house to bring some water to my room. When she returned, perhaps twenty minutes later, she found the bureau open and much of the jewelry gone. She notified me by telephone at the church and I immediately returned to the house. I at once telephoned to a detective at Providence and he arrived here Sunday morning. Five men are now working on the case. I do not suspect the servants."

Whales and Sharks In Deadly Combat Off Long Island

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 30.—The story of a school of large whales disporting off the Long Island shore receives further confirmation by Captain John Phillips, of the fishing steamer Cape Cod, who reports that last evening he witnessed the unusual spectacle of six sixty-foot whales in a battle with an equal number of ten-foot sharks about ten miles off Long Beach.

The steamer plowed full speed into the midst of the struggle and Captain Phillips sent four bullets into one of the sharks, which in its fury, struck a second shark such a powerful blow with its tail that the monster was hurled from the sea against the steamer's side.

38 Years Shoe Experience

Years teach much days never know. A business today is judged by what it knows. Should not thirty-eight years of keen observation and valuable experiments in the Southern Shoe business accumulate knowledge indispensable to the Southern Shoe Merchant?

PREMIUM BRAND SHOES

There are many things that these thirty-eight years have taught us. Particularly how to suit the Merchant's needs. This is not a mere expression of delight but of discovery—not of contentment, but of benefit. When important needs of the Shoe business had to be solved, we found its solution—acted upon it quickly—knitted it into valuable assets.

You will profit by our many years of experience if you will write us about your needs today.

No More Headaches

A prominent business man of Memphis, Tenn., writes under date of April 21, 1913, of his experience in quitting coffee. He says:

"About January first of this year I left off coffee and began the use of Instant Postum. Since getting from under the influence of coffee, headaches have ceased. I can eat anything I want to, and have no indigestion. In addition to this I have gained in weight.

"I attribute it all to the stopping of coffee and the use of Postum.

"I write this letter simply to add my testimony to the many you already have, and to induce some fellow sufferer to get relief by quitting coffee and turning to Instant Postum as a morning beverage." (Name given on request.)

is a pure food-drink, made only of clean, roasted whole wheat and a small quantity of molasses. It contains no drug whatever, but does contain the vital phosphates of the grain which are essential for the upbuilding of brain and nerve and muscle tissue.

Regular Postum (must be boiled.)

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste.

A level teaspoonful makes it right for most people. Some use a heaping teaspoonful and temper it with plenty of cream, and it has a delightfully snappy flavor that is wonderfully pleasing. Find out how you like it and always have it served that way.
